To Paint A Steeple---And Death Followed

Two Die in Plummet

A seemingly routine job ended in tragedy for both helicopter pilot and workman. Mike McKenna, a workman at Forest Lawn Memorial Park Church, Hollywood, Calif., was suspended from the aircraft by a harness in order to paint the church steeple. The ropes became entangled in the weathervane on the church steeple causing the fatal accident. The dramatic photo at left shows pilot Walter Atherton, (just below the craft) as he was thrown from the helicopter during its 80 foot plunge to the ground. The legs of the workman who was suspended beneath the chopper can be seen just above the plummeting pilot. Seconds later, above, McKenna, still attached to his harness slammed into a parked car as the helicopter falls sideways to the ground. Both men were killed. (UPI TELEPHOTO by Lee Rush)

Nixon Draws 400,000 In Chicago Opener

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon is off and running in his bid for the presidency after a campaign kickoff in Chicago that drew thousands and jammed streets.
Nixon refused during a whirlwind tour of Chicago Wednesday to comment on the bloody protest disorders there last week. He said it is best to leave conclusions to investigations already underway.
"I think political figures should not make partisan comments," Nixon said on a question-and-answer television program. "I'm not going to get into it."
Democratic candidate Hubert H. Humphrey's campaign manager, meanwhile, predicted the presidential contest will be "a close struggle that will go to the wire."
But the campaign manager, Lawrence F. O'Brien, said in Washington the vice president is getting "a depth of support that few people would have envisioned two weeks ago."

Pedestrian Killed on 52

By WALTER S. CLARK
An unidentified pedestrian described as a man in his 50's was instantly killed at 8:40 p. m. Wednesday, when struck by a New Jersey car as he walked along Route 52 about two miles west of the Village of Ellenville.
State police and Ulster County Coroner Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson investigated the fatality and today were endeavoring to learn the identity of the victim of the second traffic death to occur in this county in two days.
Investigators theorized that the clothing worn by the pedestrian indicated that he might have been an itinerant worker at a summer resort in the area. Authorities said the car involved was driven by Michael J. Woolf, 67, of 373 Rutherford Boulevard, Clifton, N. J. He was accompanied by his wife, Ethel Woolf, 66, who sustained abrasions of the right hand in the mishap.
Woolf told BCI Investigator Fred C. Cooper and Sergeant Richard Rauch of the Ellenville state police, he and his wife were on their way to visit friends in the Town of Wawaricus area. They were traveling west on the highway when they saw a man walking along the north shoulder of the road.
Woolf said that as his car approached the pedestrian the man still was on the side of Route 52, and as the New Jersey man started to pass he felt a bump on the side of the vehicle. Troopers said the motorist stopped the car and returned to the point of impact. He discovered the man had been seriously injured and apparently dead.
A physician was summoned and the unidentified victim was pronounced dead.
Woolf told investigators that he was driving his car between 45 and 50 miles an hour at the time the vehicle hit the man. Authorities reported the pedestrian was dragged along the pavement for about 190 feet.
Examination of the clothing worn by the man disclosed no papers or marks that would lead to his identity. Authorities said the man had gray hair.
Woolf apparently escaped injury. His wife was treated for abrasions.
Investigating at the scene were Coroner Chipp, who ordered the body removed to the Ulster County morgue at Kingston Hospital for examination. Troopers James Kelley and Robert Houst and Investigator Cooper and Sergeant Rauch.
No charges were lodged against the New Jersey motorist. The investigation will continue. Teletype alarms with a description of the dead man were sent out seeking information that might lead to identification.

Panthers Picket After Beating

By THOMAS POWERS
NEW YORK (UPI)—Members of the Black Panthers and of the Peace and Freedom Party today demonstrated in front of a Brooklyn court to protest the blackjacking in Criminal Court of a dozen Negroes by 200 off-duty policemen.
Two members of the militant Black Panthers were arrested in today's demonstration for refusing to obey a police order to move along in front of the Appellate Division. There were no other incidents.
The Appellate Division is down the street from Criminal Court, where on Wednesday 200 off-duty policemen shouting "white power!" and "George Wallace for President!" pulled their blackjacks and attacked the Negroes in a hallway as they stepped from an elevator.
One of the Black Panthers and a white girl with the group received scalp wounds. There were no arrests.
Mayor John V. Lindsay ordered Howard R. Leary, commissioner of the 28,500-man police force, to conduct a full investigation of the incident and report to him today. Leary said he had delivered the report to the mayor.
A spokesman for Lindsay said the mayor would not comment on the attack until after he had read the commissioner's report. The Brooklyn district attorney also ordered an investigation and said charges would be filed, if warranted.
The off-duty policemen, members of an unofficial organization known as the law enforcement group, had gathered outside the sixth-floor courtroom of Judge George Rader where a hearing for three Black Panthers was scheduled.
The three are charged with assaulting a policeman Aug. 21. The incident began when a group of 12 other Black Panthers and some companions emerged from an elevator and confronted the off-duty policemen, who were dressed in civilian clothes.
One of the off-duty policemen, wearing a "George Wallace for president" button, approached one of the Panthers and asked, "Where's your Wallace button?" A shouting match began, and the group of off-duty policemen attacked the Panthers, who were wearing their traditional black berets and necklaces of machine gun bullets in leather straps.
Witnesses said the off-duty policemen were chanting, "We're the white tigers. White tigers eat Black Panthers."
Uniformed police pushed between the two groups and shoved the Negroes and their companions back into the elevator. The police then escorted the Panthers out of the building and the neighborhood, waiting with them until they were safely in taxis.
The New York Times said in an editorial today that the incident "Reflects a dangerously spreading sentiment among policemen here and elsewhere that because they enforce the law they're somehow, personally above the law."

Democratic candidate Hubert H. Humphrey's campaign manager, meanwhile, predicted the presidential contest will be "a close struggle that will go to the wire."
But the campaign manager, Lawrence F. O'Brien, said in Washington the vice president is getting "a depth of support that few people would have envisioned two weeks ago."

Crowds estimated at from 250,000 to 400,000 crowded streets along Nixon's two-mile motorcade through the Chicago Loop area Wednesday and tons of confetti rained down from buildings.
Nixon told television panelists that U.S. choices in responding to Soviet actions in Czechoslovakia and eastern Europe are limited and world conflict should not be risked.
"I can say here that the U.S. can march and help them," he said. "But if we were to do that, it would mean risking a world conflict. I do not think any of us want that because it would mean the destruction of those countries, too."

Nixon's running mate, Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, also campaigning Wednesday, said the Nixon-Agnew stand on the law and order issue differs from those of both Humphrey and third party candidate George C. Wallace.
"George Wallace uses the words as a hatchet," Agnew said in Oshkosh, Wis. "We know that. We can sense that. Hubert Humphrey uses the words as a shield against critics of the sluggish administration of which he is a part. Richard Nixon uses the term as a pledge ... as a commitment to America."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, kicks off his campaign Sunday with what is billed as a major address at San Antonio's HemisFair in Texas.
American Independent party candidate Wallace plans to resume campaigning Tuesday after time out in Miami for rest and speech writing.
In other political developments:

—Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy will go on Minnesota's ballot as a presidential candidate and New York Mayor John V. Lindsay as a vice presidential candidate if a group of University of Minnesota law students have their way.

The students, who backed McCarthy for the Democratic nomination, say they have more than the 2,000 petition signatures needed to get the McCarthy-Lindsay ticket on the ballot. State officials say they see no legal roadblocks.

—The state committee of New York's Liberal party called by resolution Wednesday for an immediate halt to the bombing of North Vietnam and then endorsed Humphrey for president.

California Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, who was a McCarthy backer, has volunteered in a telegram to Humphrey to "undertake whatever task you may wish to assign me" in the presidential campaign.

ON MANEUVERS—Just 37 miles south of the border of Soviet-occupied Czechoslovakia, Austrian tanks conduct maneuvers on the military training ground near Allensteig, Austria on Wednesday. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

U.S. May Open Door To Czechs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may open the door to Czechs who would rather live here than under renewed Soviet domination, authoritative sources said today.

This was one of several responses to the continuing Soviet armored presence in Czechoslovakia discussed at a hush-hush session of the National Security Council Wednesday night.

Another possibility discussed was a joint pledge with NATO allies that no reductions would be made from the present troop levels in Europe.

No Decision

It was understood that the council, made up of President Johnson and his top military, diplomatic and intelligence advisers, reached no decisions, but prepared recommendations for a Cabinet meeting today.

Should the United States issue a statement promising extra-quota refugee status for Czech citizens, it would parallel action taken after the 1956 Hungarian uprising. More than 30,000 refugee cases were handled then.

For the time being, this appears to be a symbolic gesture. Few Czechs have asked U.S. consuls for asylum.

A State Department spokesman said Wednesday he had no exact figures available.

American consuls in Europe already have been instructed to handle Czech requests under the clause of the Immigration and Naturalization Act which authorizes the government to grant residence status to refugees of communism.

The Security Council meeting is understood to have discussed the whole range of problems, military and political, created by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Officials were ordered not to discuss the meeting.

The administration is understood to be cool toward congressional suggestions to punish the Soviet aggression by curtailing diplomatic, trade and cultural contacts with Moscow.

In the nuclear age, it is explained, the two superpowers cannot afford to sulk and ignore each other.

Reject Red Contention

U.S. officials on the other hand firmly rejected the Soviet contention, repeated Wednesday in the Moscow government newspaper Izvestia, that the Yalta Conference of the big three created spheres of influence in Europe, in effect permitting the Soviets to handle Eastern Europe as if it were part of the Soviet Union.

Tough Joseph Stalin and Winston Churchill reached an understanding before Yalta, dividing their countries' postwar role in the Balkans, at the conference itself the United States vigorously objected and the idea was dropped, officials said.

World War II, Izvestia said, resulted in the "transfer of several countries in central and southeastern Europe onto the rails of socialism." Imperialism intended to change this reality at the expense of Czechoslovakia.

Those statements are untrue, U.S. officials said.

Czechs and Kremlin Haggling Continuing

PRAGUE (UPI)—Czechoslovakia's president and prime minister have begun direct, long-distance haggling with Kremlin counterparts on further agreements needed to speed the withdrawal of occupation troops.

Czechoslovak political sources, making this disclosure today, said Moscow is freezing Czechoslovak party chief Alexander Dubcek out of any major role in these talks. Dubcek has been the prime symbol of the liberal reform movement in Czechoslovak eyes.

President Ludvik Svoboda and Prime Minister Oldrich Cernik are carrying the brunt of discussions apparently aimed at satisfying Moscow's desire for even more guarantees of control over the Czechoslovak news media, Communist party and populace. They reimposed censorship Wednesday.

Czechoslovak journalistic sources said the Cernik-Svoboda government Wednesday spelled out the details of modified censorship rules that prohibit criticism of Warsaw Pact invaders and forbid use of the words "occupation" and "occupiers" in the press.

Soviet troops today occupied all but three of Prague's newspaper offices. Soviet infantry and tanks remained bivouacked in the city's parks and armored car patrols prowled residential streets by night.

The censorship rules prohibited: Use of the words "occupation" and "occupiers" in reference to the Soviet troops in the country.

Dirksen on Fortas... Voting for Him... But

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen has reaffirmed his intention to vote for Abe Fortas, but stopped short of saying he will actively push for Senate approval of President Johnson's nominee to be chief justice.

"Are you going to take an active part in fighting for confirmation?" Dirksen was asked Wednesday.

"Well, I'm going to vote for him," he said.

Dirksen commented as Congress reconvened after a month-long recess and spent most of the first day grumbling over the electoral system, suggesting ways to change it but doing little substance about anything.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, where the Fortas nomination has been bottled up, had been scheduled to meet on the matter.

But Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., taking the opportunity to declare his suspected opposition to Fortas for the first time, put off the session indefinitely when a quorum failed to appear.

All of the other members opposed to Fortas' nomination to succeed Earl Warren stayed away as well as a few supporters.

Whether by accident or design, absence of the opposition seemed to indicate that its chief weapon—delaying tactics—gathered no rust during the August recess.

The aborted Judiciary meeting and lack of significant accomplishments by Congress on its first day back were not promising for a mid-October adjournment urged by leaders.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said that if Congress didn't get through the backlog—which includes the Fortas nomination, nuclear nonproliferation treaty, gun controls, major appropriations, and extension of the farm program—it probably will have to recess and come back after the November elections.

The first day's doings on Capitol Hill included a lot of criticism of the convention system of selecting national candidates, introduction of one bill to reform the system and promise of more to come.

The Senate debated an $18.5 billion money bill to finance the departments of Health, Education and Welfare, and Labor.

The House passed a bill to let employees contribute to trust funds for scholarships or child care centers for their employees, then talked about the Manpower Development and Training Act.

Dirksen's comments on the Fortas appointment followed speculation that the nomination of Richard M. Nixon as Republican presidential candidate would blunt some GOP support for Fortas in the Senate.

Nixon has said the nomination of a chief justice should be left to the next president. His position is expected to influence some Republican senators who are interested in party unity.

—News that may lead to conflicts "with foreign armies."

—News from the United Nations that is "against the interests of the Czechoslovak government."

—Comment that questions Czechoslovakia's membership in the Warsaw military pact.

—Unrestricted "reports about persons."

The last item apparently refers to reports of arrests of political or intellectual leaders, rumored in Prague and denied in Moscow.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, where the Fortas nomination has been bottled up, had been scheduled to meet on the matter.

But Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., taking the opportunity to declare his suspected opposition to Fortas for the first time, put off the session indefinitely when a quorum failed to appear.

All of the other members opposed to Fortas' nomination to succeed Earl Warren stayed away as well as a few supporters.

Whether by accident or design, absence of the opposition seemed to indicate that its chief weapon—delaying tactics—gathered no rust during the August recess.

The aborted Judiciary meeting and lack of significant accomplishments by Congress on its first day back were not promising for a mid-October adjournment urged by leaders.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said that if Congress didn't get through the backlog—which includes the Fortas nomination, nuclear nonproliferation treaty, gun controls, major appropriations, and extension of the farm program—it probably will have to recess and come back after the November elections.

The first day's doings on Capitol Hill included a lot of criticism of the convention system of selecting national candidates, introduction of one bill to reform the system and promise of more to come.

The Senate debated an $18.5 billion money bill to finance the departments of Health, Education and Welfare, and Labor.

The House passed a bill to let employees contribute to trust funds for scholarships or child care centers for their employees, then talked about the Manpower Development and Training Act.

Dirksen's comments on the Fortas appointment followed speculation that the nomination of Richard M. Nixon as Republican presidential candidate would blunt some GOP support for Fortas in the Senate.

Nixon has said the nomination of a chief justice should be left to the next president. His position is expected to influence some Republican senators who are interested in party unity.

U.S. May Open Door To Czechs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States may open the door to Czechs who would rather live here than under renewed Soviet domination, authoritative sources said today.

This was one of several responses to the continuing Soviet armored presence in Czechoslovakia discussed at a hush-hush session of the National Security Council Wednesday night.

Another possibility discussed was a joint pledge with NATO allies that no reductions would be made from the present troop levels in Europe.

No Decision

It was understood that the council, made up of President Johnson and his top military, diplomatic and intelligence advisers, reached no decisions, but prepared recommendations for a Cabinet meeting today.

Should the United States issue a statement promising extra-quota refugee status for Czech citizens, it would parallel action taken after the 1956 Hungarian uprising. More than 30,000 refugee cases were handled then.

For the time being, this appears to be a symbolic gesture. Few Czechs have asked U.S. consuls for asylum.

A State Department spokesman said Wednesday he had no exact figures available.

American consuls in Europe already have been instructed to handle Czech requests under the clause of the Immigration and Naturalization Act which authorizes the government to grant residence status to refugees of communism.

The Security Council meeting is understood to have discussed the whole range of problems, military and political, created by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Officials were ordered not to discuss the meeting.

The administration is understood to be cool toward congressional suggestions to punish the Soviet aggression by curtailing diplomatic, trade and cultural contacts with Moscow.

In the nuclear age, it is explained, the two superpowers cannot afford to sulk and ignore each other.

Reject Red Contention

U.S. officials on the other hand firmly rejected the Soviet contention, repeated Wednesday in the Moscow government newspaper Izvestia, that the Yalta Conference of the big three created spheres of influence in Europe, in effect permitting the Soviets to handle Eastern Europe as if it were part of the Soviet Union.

Tough Joseph Stalin and Winston Churchill reached an understanding before Yalta, dividing their countries' postwar role in the Balkans, at the conference itself the United States vigorously objected and the idea was dropped, officials said.

World War II, Izvestia said, resulted in the "transfer of several countries in central and southeastern Europe onto the rails of socialism... Imperialism intended to change this reality at the expense of Czechoslovakia."

Those statements are untrue, U.S. officials said.

KURA to Check Project Bids

A Bergen, N. J., firm submitted the lowest of six bids received by Kingston Urban Renewal Agency Wednesday on demolition of 134 structures in the Broadway East and Uptown UR areas.

S.A.S. Equipment Co., submitted a bid of $119,000, according to Ward Tongue, acting executive director, who said most of the bids were within the agency's estimates. Among the structures to be razed are the old Montgomery Ward building on North Front Street for which UR is planning a two-story parking garage, and several other commercial buildings and multiple dwellings in the downtown area.

The KURA Board will meet in a few days to review the bids before the contract is awarded, and work is expected to begin in about 30 days, Tongue said.

Other bids were: Rochester, N. J., $156,000; William Young, Newark, N. J., $188,000; Stachnik Lumber and Wrecking of Phillipsburg, N. J., $214,000; Poughkeepsie Wrecking Co., $223,000, and Anthony Costanzi Inc., Kingston, $243,100.

Mayone Stresses School and Home To Combat Drugs

Thomas F. Mayone, Republican candidate for sheriff of Ulster County, stressed better liaison between school and home as a means to counteract the ill of narcotics addiction relating to our youth. Mayone's statement was one of many constructive suggestions given during a talk before the Saugerties Rotary Club this week.

In a hardhitting delivery, the GOP candidate told the group that although the Saugerties area is relatively clean as compared to certain other parts of the county, narcotics and drug abuses are ever present and must be combatted continually.

"It is a complacent public attitude," Mayone said, "that contributes to the difficult job of law enforcement. Parents and school officials should cooperate completely and openly with law officers. This is the way by which we will prevent a youth's exposure to drugs." He went on to say that, "Proper education and awareness of the problem are the greatest deterrents. It is much easier and more sensible to work with the young people before they get involved than to cope with them afterwards as offenders."

Dutchess Site Swept by Flames

Sixty volunteer firefighters from New Hackensack and East Fishkill, early today battled flames that swept a large frame building owned by Schoonmaker Bros., builders, on All Angels Hill Road in Town of Wappinger.

Sergeant Hugh Brennan of the Dutchess County sheriff's office, said Susan Ossenkop, who resides nearby had just gone to bed after returning home from work shortly before 1:30 a. m. A short time after she retired she was startled by a crackling noise and as she looked from a window she saw flames in the 50 x 60-foot building.

The woman called her brother who summoned firemen in command of Chief William Pottenbergh. Flames spread rapidly through the structure which contained a quantity of hay and lumber.

DYSON DAY — John S. Dyson, Democrat candidate for Congress, spent the entire day in Kingston Wednesday exploring the city and talking with everyone from the Mayor to the man in the street. He is shown with Mrs. Anna L. Jackson as she greets him at the door of the Riverview Baptist Church where Dyson and those accompanying him on the tour had lunch. The day's itinerary was planned by Democrat Town Chairman John Bonilla, Dyson's Ulster County campaign aide. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Dyson Day in Kingston—A Look at the Area in Depth

By LYNN MULVANEY

Back in July Mrs. Annie Jackson of Ponckhockie made an impassioned plea for help for the residents of downtown Kingston. She made it to the Congressional Democrat candidate John S. Dyson at his Kingston headquarters saying, "How can we be sure that if we vote for you, you are really going to help us?"

It was Dyson's first acquaintance with the local problems which Mrs. Jackson spoke of: the lack of bus transportation in downtown Kingston after 6 p. m. . . the lack of stores in which to shop . . . the lack of accessible medical aid, of drug stores . . . the lack of interest, on the part of many, in the future of downtown.

Dyson told Mrs. Jackson then that he would be back soon to spend a day getting acquainted with the area, its people, its problems.

Strolls UR Area

Yesterday was that day — John Dyson Day in Kingston — a day in which he took a look at the community "in depth."

"I would like to see a good many of our Washington, D. C., lawmakers come out from behind their desks so that they could see, like I am, what the problems really are," Dyson explained as he strolled the Urban Renewal area yesterday morning.

He had already been to see the mayor, Raymond W. Garaghan. Their City Hall conversation was private but Dyson revealed that indeed they spoke of urban renewal and in particular the Kingston project.

The two men then toured the downtown area, accompanied by a host of Roundout-interested persons including representatives of the Human Relations Commission, NAACP, Ulster County Community Action Committee, Roundout Advisory Board and the city government.

Alderman Florence Ludlow and William Davis went along as did city treasurer Stanley Petro Jr., Judge George Beck, City Clerk Thomas Lyle, Ward Tongue and Scott Alexander of the Urban Renewal Agency and many more.

Mrs. Jackson, Irving Bell and Joseph Babiarz of the Roundout Advisory Board were there too.

Walked, Watched, Listened

Through it all, Dyson walked, watched, listened carefully, saying little but absorbing much. His soft gray green suit matched his soft-spoken attitude as he shook hands, greeted passers and stopped to talk with workmen on an excavation project.

His natural easy-going manner was in marked contrast to the hard-hitting, shirt-sleeved speechmaking phase of his campaign in which he has been taking on all subjects, all comers, with candor and confidence.

Dyson Day began with the Millbrook publisher soliciting opinions from the town's businessmen at a breakfast meeting at Whalen's on Wall Street.

The downtown part of the tour took up the balance of the morning and was concluded with a sandwich luncheon at the Riverview Baptist Church.

The afternoon saw him at Wiltywick Gardens, Gateway Industries and at a meeting with Democrat county legislators Orrie Riehl and Robert Schneller for the purpose of discussing the Lower Esopus Waterways problem of debris and pollution.

Dyson, an agricultural economics major at Cornell University, has, all through his campaign, displayed an interest in conservation, recreation and the historical aspects of the area.

A member of the National Historic Trust, he toured the Delaware and Hudson Canal near High Falls in July with an eye toward appraising its possibilities for restoration.

His interest in the Esopus Creek extends into the area of recreation. He told those at the meeting yesterday he would encourage the Army Corps of Engineers to investigate the possibility of cleaning the waterway up "so that a boy can take his bike and swim or fish in a lovely recreation area in the heart of a relatively congested section." Dyson said he thought it might be possible to get federal aid to accomplish this.

Vietnam to Chicago

Later in the day, at a gathering in the home of Mrs. Eloise Lovatt in the city, Dyson chatted with more than two dozen persons who came to meet him and hear his views on everything from Vietnam to Chicago convention riots.

Describing himself as a "different kind of candidate," he said he would not be a "breeze-in, breeze-out" kind of contender. He said he preferred to spend longer periods of time in various areas of the district getting to talk with people and obtain their views.

"It gives me opportunity to see what's on your mind and for you to see if I have one," he quipped.

Hamilton Fish Jr., Republican candidate for Congress, said "Happy Birthday" to his 17-year-old son, Ham.

The Millbrook lawyer said that since his arrival in Saigon, Vietnam, to say his tour of Southeast Asia will also take him to Israel and he called to receiving briefings by both the military and the state department.

He said he still wanted time to sift out the information he has received before making any conclusive statements concerning his observations.

Fish said he was not near any combat zone but that the city of Saigon was bracing itself for a third offensive.

Complete Freedom

Asked by Alderman John Naccarato of Kingston, whether he was at any time in danger, Fish replied that he missed a Viet Cong attack by three hours.

Asked by members of the news media whether he was being given the "standard tour," Fish replied that he had complete freedom of choice.

He told of visiting a Vietnamese refugee camp, a Vietnamese orphanage, a vocational training school and an American Field Hospital.

Fish reported that United States and South Vietnamese officials have said a bombing halt presently would seriously jeopardize the lives and safety of men fighting in South Vietnam.

See Coalition Problems

Touching on a negotiated settlement, he added, "Officials also seem to feel a coalition government would present many difficulties. They regard the Viet Cong as agents of Hanoi and state political realities automatically exclude the Viet Cong."

Fish also volunteered that American opinion was being felt concerning a crackdown on corruption in Vietnam.

Speaking of the messages and packages he arranged to have delivered to local American boys fighting there, Fish, a Navy veteran of World War II said that the packages were delayed in the mail but that they would eventually be delivered even after he leaves the area.

Talks With Family

Accompanied on the trip by John Barry, Catskill public relations man, Fish announced they would leave Saigon within hours to go to Tel Aviv. He said he was planning the Israeli visit in order to round out his tour of "crucial areas."

Fish talked with other members of his family including his wife, Julia who asked in anxious wifely fashion that he "come home."

Estimate and Surcharge

For the 6.2 million taxpayers who file estimates of taxes out of the total of 72 million taxpayers in the nation, the surcharge tax catches up with them September 15. That is when their third quarterly estimated payment is due, and it is the earliest time when they could have included the surcharge in their estimates.

There are some things to take into consideration when estimating and paying your third quarter tax. First, the individual tax was effective retroactively to April 1. That means that three-fourths, or 7.5 per cent is due and payable this year. But since there are two quarters remaining this year, each payment will be 3.75 per cent, not the 2.5 per cent that would have been due for a single quarter of the 10 per cent surcharge, had it been effective for the whole year.

There is a penalty for failing to estimate sufficient taxes and paying them in installments. Interest is charged on under-estimates, a technical matter about which it is wise to consult an income tax agent. It is also possible at the final payment for the fourth quarter January 15 to file an amended estimate and pay all arrears. But if they show a big amount due, it may be risky. Play it safe. Estimate the top amount. Better get a rebate than a penalty.

They Were So Few

The National Student Association has just released some eye opening findings. A survey they made showed that there were at least 221 major demonstrations at 101 colleges and universities involving 38,911 students from January 1 to June 15 this year.

The survey included only first-time occurrences on four-year college campuses led by students and including 35 or more participants. But the most significant finding of all was that the total participants made up only 2.6 per cent of the students enrolled in the colleges involved.

Less than three in 100 students at these colleges took part in the demonstrations that gave American campus life a black eye, aroused the whole community, and produced the impression that our youth had gone haywire. When as a matter of fact, by the testimony of the National Student Association, the central organization of student governments, the vast majority of students shunned the rioting and demonstrating and left it to the infinitesimal few on each campus.

Once again, this is evidence that a determined few who are organized and ruthless can create a furor and produce results far more than their number warrants. It is not majority rule, it is not even a balanced minority rule, it is oligarchical rule—a tiny group who determined to rule or ruin. They were aided and abetted by a few faculty members and together they made enough noise to fool the country into believing that it was in the hands of unruly youth.

To paraphrase a famous saying, never did so few do so much to so many. It should not be tolerated.

Upswing in Crime

With the FBI reporting a continued upswing in crime—accounted for largely by an increase in crimes of violence—it is unbelievable that groups of citizens in some metropolitan cities are seeking control of police by elected neighborhood boards.

Whenever crime gets out of control in big cities, the cry is raised that City Hall is responsible, and must free the professional heads of the police department to protect the city. Imagine the confusion if every police precinct was directed by an elected board, each board free to direct, promote and discipline the police in its precinct. And what a cinch for criminals to infiltrate the boards by running their henchmen to do their dirty work!

Well, a recommendation of an organization called the Black United Front, in the federal capital, for local control of police has just been rejected by the Policemen's Association of the District of Columbia, and no wonder. With 14 precincts in Washington, 14 different neighborhood police boards, each running the police detachment in their precincts, could create a condition twice confounded. The police would be dizzy trying to do their jobs under such circumstances.

New York City is experimenting with neighborhood school boards, and that is bad enough since it means differing standards of education for each district. But for the police to be under such boards is impossible. It shows how far some groups have gone astray in their thinking about local option.

NATO Seeks Retention Of U.S. Troops in Europe

WASHINGTON — The United States government knew of the preparations for the invasion of Czechoslovakia at least 20 days before it happened. A memorandum prepared by the central intelligence agency was distributed throughout the government on August 2 to the effect that military preparations had been completed in a fortnight's time which would be adequate for an intervention in Czechoslovakia if deemed necessary.

Also, on August 20, the day before the invasion occurred, President Johnson had a luncheon with high officials at which Soviet strategy was discussed. Reports of a Soviet Central Committee meeting to be held that same day were available which indicated a decision by the Soviet government to move into Czechoslovakia. The reports were based on the character of the exercises near the borders of Czechoslovakia which appeared to be a rehearsal for military intervention. In one sense, the information about the Soviet plans was not particularly difficult to obtain, because when a force of at least 200,000 is mobilized, there are evidences which cannot escape observation by the public.

President Johnson has been criticized by Austria for not having made a much more pointed protest about the invasion of Czechoslovakia. This may account for the fact that on August 30 President Johnson, in a speech at San Antonio, Texas, decided to speak out against another possible act of aggression aimed at another country in Europe — presumably Rumania. He said:

"It is clear to me that the leaders in Moscow have felt that their interests were threatened by the emergence of even modest degrees of independence and human liberty. And there are even rumors late this evening that this action (in Czechoslovakia) might be repeated somewhere else in eastern Europe."

While the Soviet government sent its ambassador to Secretary Rusk on Saturday to deny any such plan, Austria is growing more and more worried. Diplomats in Vienna express regret concerning what they term the passive attitude of the United States, and point out that Austria now has to reckon with the presence of 600,000 Warsaw Pact troops across its northern borders. The Austrian officials say that, even if the occupation troops should be gradually withdrawn from Czechoslovakia, the Soviets will still keep large forces along the Austria-Czech border, and this isn't very comfortable. What the Vienna government would like to see is a clear-cut American statement that the United States will not tolerate any change in the status quo of the neutral zones in Europe.

France also is becoming restless, and has made a strong demand to the Soviet to withdraw promptly their forces from Czechoslovakia. There is a fear expressed in Paris. Moreover, that the next country to be invaded will be Romania, West Germany, too, is disturbed by recent developments in Czechoslovakia.

Meanwhile, officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are beginning to revise their defense plans and to call for a new pronouncement of policy by the United States with respect to the retention of troops in Europe. Since last March more than 30,000 American troops have been pulled out and relocated in the United States. It has been said that they could quickly be returned to Europe. But the Soviet invasion has convinced NATO officials that the United States military forces would have arrived to late if a Soviet attack had been begun against any of the NATO countries.

For the time being, President Johnson's warning to the Soviets that the United States would not condone "unbridled aggression" is being circulated throughout Europe as a form of assurance. President Johnson, in his San Antonio speech last Friday, also said:

"I express the hope and the belief that there will be no condoning of aggressors and no appeasement of those who prowl across national boundaries by this or by any other administration."

It may be taken for granted that both presidential candidates share President Johnson's view, and that the United States, despite the occurrence of a presidential election, is not going to change its policy of defending the people of Europe, for whom so many Americans sacrificed their lives in World

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The hangup is hunger. It's the key. Today, 170,000 persons will die and 350,000 more will be born: A net gain of 180,000 mouths. This happens every time the world turns toward another dawn. A full belly cannot understand hunger. Nor can chronic hunger understand itself, because it induces an attitude of fatalistic lassitude.

What to do? Soon, a wedding may become a crime. More babies, more mouths, more food. A baby born in Asia has a 50 per cent chance of living to the age of six. In Biafra, the best-fed creatures are the vultures. They sit on low branches and wait for humans to fall from weakness.

The world grows more food per acre than ever before. It lives off the top eight inches of soil. If a cataclysmic wind could blow that small bit of topsoil out to sea, everybody would die. Nothing would grow.

Food is a seed reposing in nutritious soil photosynthesized by sunlight and rain into a plant. A tree is a stick of sunlight and sugar. A blade of grass, devoured by a cow, is milk. A fish, eating algae, is molecular sunlight transmuted into energy.

Half of the three billion people need more calories. Americans have too many. They wear out gold-plated stomachs. The countries around the rim of the North Atlantic Ocean grow more food than they can eat. Canada is a thousand miles of undulating wheat. The wellfed want to sell, but the poor cannot buy. The little boy stares wistfully through the candy store window. Rice is nice. One half the world lives on it, but it is only 10 per cent protein, and proteins are the building blocks of the human body. Ironically, a food explosion cannot cancel a population explosion. It should, but the cost of shipping one loaf of bread from Chicago to Madagascar would run to $5. Everyone philosophizes about hunger, but no one gives a damn. Not truly. My wife and I sometimes sit in a place called Wolfe's devouring Jewish pickles, cold slaw, steak, baked potatoes in a snowbank of sour cream and baked apple cake with big sugary crumbs on top. She says: "A plane got into Biafra with canned food and when the soldiers saw what it was, they burst into tears." I nod. "What a picture that would make," I say.

Every statesman has a plan. The wellfed pity the dying. Fat clergymen murmur a prayer. CARE sends a package. Point Four sends seeds. A Hindu with ribs like a harp dozes under a mimosa tree watching water buffalo wallow in muddy water. His religion will not permit him to eat them. The fat water buffalo is an atheist, but he'll be saved.

The world can grow enough food for three times its present population, but it won't. The United Nations could research a food plan for every nation on earth without straining its resources. Each country could be told how many people it is going to have to feed each succeeding decade and what it must do to give its people a balanced diet. With few exceptions, most people could be taught to feed themselves. There are about 20 amino acids, none listed on a restaurant menu. Unless you ingest eight of them regularly, you cannot live. The American Indian never heard of them, but he hunted across the plains and bagged just enough buffalo and wild game, supplemented by wild roots, to make himself strong and unafraid. The white man arrived. In 20 years he made the bison a museum piece.

A farmer must raise seven pounds of feed to increase the weight of a steer one pound. Sugar is energy but a Cuban living on a cheap cereal diet hasn't the strength to cut the cane. Guatemala raises good coffee, but it must sell it for cash to buy corn and meat and powdered milk. Man, the only animal born with intelligence, is desperate.

A city does not produce food. It produces people. Every month there are 5,400,000 more bellies to be filled in the world. The world of medicine helps everyone to live longer. We have a pill that can stop you before you start. The wrong people use it: the wrong people refuse it.

Does anyone really care? Forty years ago Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur wrote a play called "The Front Page." In it, an editor phones the city desk. His makeup man tells him that a news bulletin just in relates that a million Chinese have died along the Yangtze. "Put it in the back of the paper," the editor says, "and give it a paragraph."

"How about the story of the rooster who is supposed to have laid an egg?" the makeup man asks. "Keep it on page one," the boss says. "That's human interest..."

Drew Pearson Says American Legion Can Help Negro Veteran

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to Cartha Deloach, Assistant Director of the FBI and an executive of The American Legion.)
Washington, D.C.
Sept. 3, 1968

Mr. Cartha Deloach
National Convention
New Orleans, La.
Dear Deke:

I am writing to you as one of the leaders of the American Legion because I recall so vividly the wonderful job the Legion did in the years following the war when we combined to send the Tide of Toys to the children of war-torn Europe.

It seems to me that the Legion, on the eve of its 50th anniversary convention, faces another great opportunity, this one right here at home. Today several thousand Negro veterans are returning from Vietnam where they fought valiantly side-by-side with white soldiers. But back here they frequently find themselves without jobs, without the necessary training, without advice and without friends.

Most distressing of all, many of them feel unwanted in their community.

In my opinion, and as a member of the Legion, this presents us with an opportunity which no other organization can meet so well.

I recognize, of course, that this idea may present problems to some posts in some parts of the country. But long ago we met the problem of the "40 and 8" and kicked it out because it refused to drop its policy of segregation.

I recognize also that the Legion has had a reputation of concentrating on hi-jinks, water bags, electric prods, etc., at its national convention which, however, is unfair. It was the "40 and 8" which chiefly went in for tomfoolery. Nevertheless, the link between the Legion and frivolity has prevailed in the public mind.

Regardless of public impressions, however, an extremely important problem lies ahead for the nation and for all veterans.

Negroes' Combat Record
Approximately 40,000 Negro veterans have now returned from Vietnam. Their record in Vietnam rates as high as any white soldiers. Because in proportion to the percentage of our population, more Negroes were in the front line than whites.

Negroes comprise ten per cent of the population, and Defense Department figures show that Negroes comprise 9.8 per cent of the troops in Vietnam. However, Negroes make up 20 per cent of the combat troops, and 25 per cent of the specially trained elite units such as front line supervisors and paratroopers.

Negro soldiers killed in battle comprise 14 per cent of the total casualties.

This is a record of which the Negro race can be proud.

Furthermore, every white combat soldier testifies to the courage of Negro troops. Naturally they return to the United States proud of their record and feeling that they deserve some recognition.

The New York Times recently conducted a cross-country survey of Negro veterans after their return; and as reported by Thomas A. Johnson of the Times staff, the average Negro veteran feels that he "comes back to SOS — the same old stuff. It's business as usual in America, and business as usual means the black people are going to catch hell."

This should not happen. In the first place Negro veterans deserve better treatment. In the second place, to let Negro veterans become jobless or frustrated is dangerous. They could swell the ranks of teenage troublemakers who make up the ranks of looters in our big cities. On the other hand, they can become respected members of the community where they are particularly needed as policemen, schoolteachers, and in various skilled trades and professions.

Even the white veteran frequently has trouble finding himself, so you can imagine how much trouble the Negro veteran has.

I would suggest that Legion posts all over the country set themselves up as advisers in job training, job location, and in regard to housing. It should not be required that a Negro veteran join the Legion to get the benefit of this help. He'll probably join anyway. What we need to do is to get the lists of returned veterans from the Veterans Bureau and seek the men out to offer help and guidance.

We should do this before trouble starts, not afterward. Show that the white man can go into the ghetto, not sit in the board rooms and wait for people to come to him. The white community must hold out its hand to the black community. Each Legionnaire must become a racial Minuteman to head off trouble, not use a gun later after trouble starts.

If there is a complaint of housing discrimination in your community, a Legionnaire should be the first to help straighten it out. I have been associated for some years with Big Brothers, which works on the policy of one man helping one boy. Perhaps the same idea could be used by the Legion, one white buddy helping one black buddy.

I repeat, the Legion is peculiarly suited for this kind of a program. It has thousands of posts all over the country. It has a constitution which sets these goals: "To inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both classes and masses; to make right master might; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy."

Nothing falls more perfectly within those goals than a helping hand to men who fought in foxholes shoulder to shoulder and now come back to feel that, though wanted in war, they are spurned in peace.

This is a goal far better, far more important than passing resolutions endorsing good Americanism or urging that Stokely Carmichael be put in jail. In brief, the American Legion, whose members risked their lives to save their country on the battlefield, must now save their country from division and disruption here at home.

Please excuse the length of this letter, but it's an important subject and I wanted to get it off my chest.

Drew Pearson

Henry J. Taylor Says Young People Are Victimized

I've taken tear gas, plenty — in Greece, Spain, Germany, Yugoslavia, Egypt, India and Japan — but when you get tear-gassed, as I was in Chicago's Grant Park, it's very different. And the whole thing is so tragic that you just cannot believe it is our country and that it's happening to you, that these are Americans around you and that you are there.

Tear gas, my friends, is rough. It is one thing to see it on TV, but it's another thing to get it. And that first fight was very rough, too, so let me just tell it as it was. For the TV gives only a distortion; and you yourself have to be in the thing and experience it to get the feeling and the guts of what's happening.

In the first place, I was in Grant Park for several hours with those 3000 so-called hippies before anything was happening at all, and on through to the end, which was the gas and the clubbings. To my eyes, some looked awful in their get-ups. They're certainly small credit to themselves, they're insolent, and they know just enough to reason wrongly — but they are, by and large, not militant.

If I seem to defend the hippie, it is only because nobody with any experience in life could feel anything except pity for such waste, for such tragic blindness to the only values in life that can conceivably bring happiness, security and any real sense of contribution.

When the gas cloud hits, you feel it first in the terrible stinging in your eyes and the rush of water from your eyes, and then the burning in your mouth and throat, like fire. That's how you start being helpless.

In this first moment a frail young girl, about 18, sandal-footed and wearing a blanket and beads, rushed up to me. "Don't rub your eyes!" she shouted. (I wasn't.) "That makes it worse."

How on earth could you be so resentful of that girl? You just felt like putting your arm around her and saying, "Now look, let me get you out of this mess. Come on, let me find you something to eat and a roof for the night, and take care of you where you'll be safe and away from all this."

There isn't a responsible parent in this whole country who wouldn't have the same feeling.

This is the sin, the unforgivable sin, of the militant and totally unscrupulous organizers of the plans that were sure to lead to a fight — and there were at least 50 such organizers in Grant Park — who manipulate them. These haraaguers are to these young people exactly what the dope peddlers are to the addicts, and so far as I am concerned, I'd like to see every one of them locked up in the penitentiary.

The manipulators' plan in Grant Park was to create a diversion outside the ring of guards who were restricting the whole assemblage to the park. You could walk out singly or in small numbers, but you could not get out by the hundreds to storm the streets.

"We'll create a diversion," the manipulators announced for a full hour, using bull horns.

"We want volunteers. Come out one by one. Join up on the outside."

When the manipulators

collected enough people opposite the Conrad Hilton Hotel, they made their move against the outside of the ring, a guerrilla-warfare tactic of which these manipulators are past masters.

To stave off the approaching column, the police and soldiers in the ring had to turn around. This opened the hole for those inside the ring.

What, then, were the police and soldiers supposed to do? Then came the tear gas. There were clubbings, and I saw police brutality without a question whatever, because some policemen are brutal and because others have provoked beyond all conceivable ability to withstand the provocations.

But it is simply not true that there was too big an armed force. It takes a very large guard to offset the maneuvers that today's manipulators use. Every last policeman and soldier in Grant Park turned out to be needed.

The great, heartbreaking tragedy is that there is any element in America that can be victimized in this futile, awful way.

France also is becoming restless, and has made a strong demand to the Soviet to withdraw promptly their forces from Czechoslovakia. There is a fear expressed in Paris. Moreover, that the next country to be invaded will be Rumania, West Germany, too, is disturbed by recent developments in Czechoslovakia.

Meanwhile, officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are beginning to revise their defense plans and to call for a new pronouncement of policy by the United States with respect to the retention of troops in Europe. Since last March more than 30,000 American troops have been pulled out and relocated in the United States. It has been said that they could quickly be returned to Europe. But the Soviet invasion has convinced NATO officials that the United States military forces would have arrived to late if a Soviet attack had been begun against any of the NATO countries.

For the time being, President Johnson's warning to the Soviets that the United States would not condone "unbridled aggression" is being circulated throughout Europe as a form of assurance. President Johnson, in his San Antonio speech last Friday, also said:

"I express the hope and the belief that there will be no condoning of aggressors and no appeasement of those who prowl across national boundaries by this or by any other administration."

It may be taken for granted that both presidential candidates share President Johnson's view, and that the United States, despite the occurrence of a presidential election, is not going to change its policy of defending the people of Europe, for whom so many Americans sacrificed their lives in World

The hangup is hunger. It's the key. Today, 170,000 persons will die and 350,000 will be born: A net gain of 180,000 mouths. This happens every time the world turns toward another dawn. A full belly cannot understand hunger. Nor can chronic hunger understand itself, because it induces an attitude of fatalistic lassitude.

What to do? Soon, a wedding may become a crime. More babies, more mouths, more food. A baby born in Asia has a 50 per cent chance of living to the age of six. In Biafra, the best-fed creatures are the vultures. They sit on low branches and wait for humans to fall from weakness.

The world grows more food per acre than ever before. It lives off the top eight inches of soil. If a cataclysmic wind could blow that small bit of topsoil out to sea, everybody would die. Nothing would grow.

Food is a seed reposing in nutritious soil photosynthesized by sunlight and rain into a plant. A tree is a stick of sunlight and sugar. A blade of grass, devoured by a cow, is milk. A fish, eating algae, is molecular sunlight transmuted into energy.

Half of the three billion people need more calories. Americans have too many. They wear out gold-plated stomachs. The countries around the rim of the North Atlantic Ocean grow more food than they can eat. Canada is a thousand miles of undulating wheat. The wellfed want to sell, but the poor cannot buy. The little boy stares wistfully through the candy store window. Rice is nice. One half the world lives on it, but it is only 10 per cent protein, and proteins are the building blocks of the human body. Ironically, a food explosion cannot cancel a population explosion. It should, but the cost of shipping one loaf of bread from Chicago to Madagascar would run to $5.

Everyone philosophizes about hunger, but no one gives a damn. Not truly. My wife and I sometimes sit in a place called Wolfie's devouring Jewish pickles, cold slaw, steak, baked potatoes in a snowbank of sour cream and baked apple cake with big sugary crumbs on top. She says: "A plane got into Biafra with canned food and when the soldiers saw what it was, they burst into tears." I nod. "What a picture that would make," I say.

Every statesman has a plan. The wellfed pity the dying. Fat clergymen murmur a prayer. CARE sends a package. Point Four sends seeds. A Hindu with ribs like a harp does under a mimosa tree watching water buffalo wallow in muddy water. His religion will not permit him to eat them. The fat water buffalo is an atheist, but he'll be saved.

The world can grow enough food for three times its present population, but it won't. The United Nations could research a food plan for every nation on earth without straining its resources.

Each country could be told how many people it is going to have to feed each succeeding decade and what it must do to give its people a balanced diet. With few exceptions, most people could be taught to feed themselves. There are about 20 amino acids, none listed on a restaurant menu. Unless you ingest eight of them regularly, you cannot live. The American Indian never heard of them, but he hunted across the plains and bagged just enough buffalo and wild game, supplemented by wild roots, to make himself strong and unafraid. The white man arrived. In 20 years he made the bison a museum piece.

A farmer must raise seven pounds of feed to increase the weight of a steer one pound. Sugar is energy but a Cuban, living on a cheap cereal diet hasn't the strength to cut the cane. Guatemala raises good coffee, but it must sell it for cash to buy corn and meat and powdered milk. Man, the only animal born with intelligence, is desperate.

A city does not produce food. It produces people. Every month there are 5,400,000 more bellies to be filled in the world. The world of medicine helps everyone to live longer. We have a pill that can stop you before you start. The wrong people use it: the wrong people refuse it.

Does anyone really care? Forty years ago Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur wrote a play called "The Front Page." In it, an editor phones the city desk. His makeup man tells him that a news bulletin just in relates that a million Chinese have died along the Yangtze. "Put it in the back of the naper," the editor says, "and give it a paragraph."

"How about the story of the rooster who is supposed to have laid an egg?" the makeup man asks. "Keep it on page one," the boss says. "That's human interest!"

Drew Pearson Says American Legion Can Help Negro Veteran

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to Cartha Deloach, Assistant Director of the FBI and an executive of The American Legion.)
Washington, D.C.
Sept. 3, 1968

Mr. Cartha Deloach
National Convention
New Orleans, La.
Dear Deke:

I am writing to you as one of the leaders of the American Legion because I recall so vividly the wonderful job the Legion did in the years following the war when we combined to send the Tide of Toys to the children of war-torn Europe.

It seems to me that the Legion, on the eve of its 50th anniversary convention, faces another great opportunity, this one right here at home.

Today several thousand Negro veterans are returning from Vietnam where they fought valiantly side-by-side with white soldiers. But back here they frequently find themselves without jobs, without the necessary training, without advice and without friends.

Most distressing of all, many of them feel unwanted in their community.

In my opinion, and as a member of the Legion, this presents us with an opportunity which no other organization can meet so well.

I recognize, of course, that this idea may present problems to some posts in some parts of the country. But long ago we met the problem of the "40 and 8" and kicked it out because it refused to drop its policy of segregation.

I recognize also that the Legion has had a reputation of concentrating on hi-jinks, water bags, electric prods, etc., at its national convention which, however, is unfair. It was the "40 and 8" which chiefly went in for tomfoolery. Nevertheless, the link between the Legion and frivolity has prevailed in the public mind.

Regardless of public impressions, however, an extremely important problem lies ahead for the nation and for all veterans.

Negroes' Combat Record
Approximately 40,000 Negro veterans have now returned from Vietnam. Their record in Vietnam rates as high as any white soldiers. Because in proportion to the percentage of our population, more Negroes were in the front line than whites.

Negroes comprise ten per cent of the population, and Defense Department figures show that Negroes comprise 9.8 per cent of the troops in Vietnam. However, Negroes make up 20 per cent of the combat troops, and 25 per cent of the specially trained elite units such as front line supervisors and paratroopers.

Negro soldiers killed in battle comprise 14 per cent of the total casualties.

This is a record of which the Negro race can be proud.

Furthermore, every white combat soldier testifies to the courage of Negro troops. Naturally they return to the United States proud of their record and feeling that they deserve some recognition.

The New York Times recently conducted a cross-country survey of Negro veterans after their return: and as reported by Thomas A. Johnson of Negro veteran feels that he "comes back to SOS — the same old stuff. It's business as usual in America, and business as usual means the black people are going to catch hell."

This should not happen. In the first place Negro veterans deserve better treatment. In the second place, to let Negro veterans become jobless or frustrated is dangerous. They could swell the ranks of teenage troublemakers who make up the ranks of looters in our big cities. On the other hand, they can become respected members of the community where they are particularly needed as policemen, schoolteachers, and in various skilled trades and professions.

Even the white veteran frequently has trouble finding himself, so you can imagine how much trouble the Negro veteran has.

I would suggest that Legion posts all over the country set themselves up as advisers in job training, job location, and in regard to housing. It should not be required that a Negro veteran join the Legion to get the benefit of this help. He'll probably join anyway. What we need to do is to get the lists of returned veterans from the Veterans Bureau and seek the men out to offer help and guidance.

We should do this before trouble starts, not afterward. Show that the white man can go into the ghetto, not sit in the board rooms and wait for people to come to him. The white community must hold out its hand to the black community. Each Legionnaire must become a racial Minuteman to head off trouble, not use a gun later after trouble starts.

If there is a complaint of housing discrimination in your community, a Legionnaire should be the first to help straighten it out. I have been associated for some years with Big Brothers, which works on the policy of one man helping one boy. Perhaps the same idea could be used by the Legion, one white buddy helping one black buddy.

I repeat, the Legion is peculiarly suited for this kind of a program. It has thousands of posts all over the country. It has a constitution which sets these goals: "To inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both classes and masses; to make right master might; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy."

Nothing falls more perfectly within those goals than a helping hand to men who fought in foxholes shoulder to shoulder and now come back to feel that, though wanted in war, they are spurned in peace.

This is a goal far better, far more important than passing resolutions endorsing good Americanism or urging that Stokely Carmichael be put in jail. In brief, the American Legion, whose members risked their lives to save their country on the battlefield, must now save their country from division and disruption here at home.

Please excuse the length of this letter, but it's an important subject and I wanted to get it off my chest. Drew Pearson

Henry J. Taylor Says

Young People Are Victimized

I've taken tear gas, plenty — in Greece, Spain, Germany, Yugoslavia, Egypt, India and Japan — but when you get tear-gassed, as I was in Chicago's Grant Park, it's very different. And the whole thing is so tragic that you just cannot believe it is our country and that it's happening to you, that these are Americans around you and that you are there.

Tear gas, my friends, is rough. It is one thing to see it on TV, but it's another thing to get it. And that first fight was very rough, too, so let me just tell it as it was. For the TV gives only a distortion; and you yourself have to be in the thing and experience it to get the feeling and the guts of what's happening.

In the first place, I was in Grant Park for several hours with those 3000 so-called hippies before anything was happening at all, and on through to the end, which was the gas and the clubbings. To my eyes, some looked awful in their get-ups. They're certainly small credit to themselves, they're insolent, and they know just enough to reason wrongly — but they are, by and large, not militant.

If I seem to defend the hippie, it is only because nobody with any experience in life could feel anything except pity for such waste, for such tragic blindness to the only values in life that can conceivably bring happiness, security and any real sense of contribution. When the gas cloud hits, you feel it first in the terrible stinging in your eyes and the rush of water from your eyes, and then the burning in your mouth and throat, like fire. That's how you start being helpless.

In this first moment a frail young girl, about 18, sandal-footed and wearing a blanket and beads, rushed up to me. "Don't rub your eyes!" she shouted. (I wasn't.) "That makes it worse."

How on earth could you be resentful of that girl? You just felt like putting your arm around her and saying, "Now look, let me get you out of this mess. Come on, let me find you something to eat and a roof for the night, and take care of you where you'll

There isn't a responsible parent in this whole country who wouldn't have the same feeling. This is the sin, the unforgivable sin, of the militant and totally unscrupulous organizers of the plans that were sure to lead to a fight — and there were at least 50 such organizers in Grant Park — who manipulate them. These haranguers are to these young people exactly what the dope peddlers are to the addicts, and so far as I am concerned, I'd like to see every one of them locked up in the penitentiary.

The manipulators' plan in Grant Park was to create a diversion outside the ring of guards who were restricting the whole assemblage to the park. You could walk out singly or in small numbers, but you could not get out by the hundreds to storm the streets.

"We'll create a diversion," the manipulators announced for a full hour, using bull horns.

"We want volunteers. Come out one by one. Join up on the outside."

When the manipulators

collected enough people opposite the Conrad Hilton Hotel, they made their move against the outside of the ring, a guerrilla-warfare tactic of which these manipulators are past masters.

To stave off the approaching column, the police and soldiers in the ring had to turn around. This opened the hole for those inside the ring.

What, then, were the police and soldiers supposed to do? Then came the tear gas. There were clubbings, and I saw police brutality without a question whatever, because some policemen are brutal and because others have provoked beyond all conceivable ability to withstand the provocations.

But it is simply not true that there was too big an armed force. It takes a very large guard to offset the maneuvers that today's manipulators use. Every last policeman and soldier in Grant Park turned out to be needed.

The great, heartbreaking tragedy is that there is any element in America that can be victimized in this futile, awful way.

The Town of Wawarsing has an opportunity to demonstrate in a positive way that narcotics, gambling, disrespect by teenagers of laws, do not dominate our area. The time has come for the people and the leaders of our community to show that they are interested in our teenagers. That they are willing to become involved in the needs of our youth.

The creation of a teenage center for the youth of the Town of Wawarsing is one of the best ways to say that the parents, the community and public officials do care.

To its credit the Wawarsing Town Board, through its Supervisor Frank W. Harkin, has offered the Town Hall meeting room in the Town Building for use as a teenage recreation center. A final vote to complete this outstanding civic gesture by the Town Board, is to be taken at its regular meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. All parents and civic minded residents of the community are urged to attend this meeting to demonstrate their approval and confidence in the Town Board's action.

For too long have the negative actions of mis-guided teenagers been given the far greater share of publicity. It is time that affirmative, healthy and positive activities by teenagers be recognized. They deserve no less.

The vast majority of our youth are sincere and well-adjusted. Their interest and desire to form a teenage youth center is an important step to become responsible citizens. They are right - thinking youngsters heading in the proper direction. Let us encourage them.

To recognize the needs of the young is to understand the importance of this project. Teenagers look to the adults, their parents and community leaders, for guidance. We have no right to fail them. Parental absenteeism should not exist on a matter of such importance.

The welfare of our youth come far ahead of Urban Renewal, better highways or beautification of streets. There can be no question where the priorities lie.

To deny the teenagers an opportunity for social self-development is to confirm unfounded and ugly rumors of indifference. Let everyone encourage the Town Board to finalize their excellent civic gesture.

All parents, community residents, organizational representatives and local officials are urged to attend the meeting of the Town Board. The needs of our children are a reality. THE TIME IS NOW!

This is a summary of diseases caused by pigeons. Much of this information is from Diseases Of Man Acquired From His Pets by B. Bissler, (c) B. Bissler, 1967, published by J. B. Lippincott Company Philadelphia, and my own personal experience.

The ancestry of pigeons goes back to the cliff dwelling rock dove (Columba livia), which was thought to be the first bird domesticated as a pet or trapped for food (probable not true since the goose is now thought to be the first domesticated bird). The pigeon was used by the Chinese during the seventh century for delivering messages. Early sailors kept pigeons as pets and, when released, indicated the position of land mass. Being cliff dwellers, pigeons do not nest in trees but prefer perches offered on ornamental buildings in cities.

The great increase in pigeon population has led to nuisances such as: noisy cooing, getting underfoot, damage to property from excreta, air pollution from dust created by dried fecal matter, feathers and sometimes infestation from insects known as mites.

There are probably many diseases transmitted to man by pigeons but only a few have been thoroughly investigated and accepted as being causally related. I will refer only to those. A. Bird fanciers disease: a type of recurrent pulmonary disease in some individuals characterized by cough, shortness of breath, fever and shivering when exposed to excreta of pigeons. The disease is similar to so-called farmers' lung which is caused by a fungus in the dust of mouldy hay.

B. Ornithosis (psittacosis): an acute infectious disease which may be fatal and is acquired from sick or healthy pigeons and psittacine birds. This is characterized by fever, cough, headache and occasionally a rash. Over 50 per cent of the pigeons in many major cities of the world have been shown to have been infected as a result of antibody testing. We have seen several cases in New York City and suspect that many go undiagnosed as either bronchitis or viral pneumonia.

C. Cryptococcosis: a fungus disease causing a mild pneumonia with cough and fever or severe and frequently fatal meningitis. Some mycologists (specialists in fungus infections) believe that the pneumonic form of the disease is not uncommon but fortunately the meningitic type is. It is particularly in individuals with other severe basic diseases that brain inflammation with this fungus occurs. The fungus is excreted in the stool by many pigeons.

D. Histoplasmosis: another fungal disease causing lung infections from which most individuals recover. The fungus grows best in acid soil so that it is often not a major problem in the large cities.

E. Pigeon mites (dermanyssus gallinae): may cause dermatitis (skin inflammation) in people in contact with these pests. Office workers exposed to these mites in buildings where pigeons nest have been affected.

F. Avian tuberculosis: causes lung infections, enlargement of the lymph glands of the neck and is apparently contracted from pigeons on rare occasions. The organism is excreted into the soil via the fecal route.

G. Several other viral, bacterial and parasitic diseases are thought to be transmitted by pigeons but the relationship in this regard is not yet proven.

H. Control of pigeons is a difficult matter for many reasons. Recently oral contraceptive pills were added to pigeon feed which reduces egg laying by 80 per cent. Perhaps this method of reducing pigeon population is acceptable to all interested parties.

Drive, Pinebush, asked my permission in the latter part of June of this year, to graze his animals upon my property. I consented with the understanding that I would take no responsibility and that I was to get no payment for this permission.

Since 1956 my wife and I have been operating a dude ranch at High Falls, under the name of Clover Valley Dude Ranch. We open the ranch about May 30th and close the day after Labor Day.

In the normal operation of our dude ranch we hire horses for the use of our guests, and make sure that all the animals are well taken care of while in our custody. After Labor Day we return these horses to the owners. For personal reasons we did not open the dude ranch during the 1968 season.

On Sunday, August 11, 1968, my caretaker was advised that many of the animals were roaming on the road and suggestion was made to him that he lock them in the barn for safety reasons. Sunday night he put five animals in the barn, which was the first and only time these animals were ever kept in the barn.

My farm land consists of 238 acres, all of which is good grazing land. There is a stream running thru the acreage, so that there is ample feed and water for five horses for grazing purposes.

From a reading of the article it would appear that I was involved in either renting or sheltering these horses for hire. I would like an explanation in your paper to explain to my neighbors in High Falls and to my own clientele, who have been visiting my dude ranch for many years, that these horses were not mine and were brought there in that condition and that neither my wife nor I nor Clover Valley Dude Ranch was in any way involved in this alleged neglect.

Very truly yours,

'The Americans'

By LEON DENNEN
NEW YORK (NEA) — While it is fashionable these days for assorted intellectuals, here and abroad, to bait "decadent" America, a book just published in West Germany depicts the United States as a land of freedom, progress and promise.

Entitled "The Americans," the book was written by Norbert Muehlen, an eminent German-born newspaperman who has been reporting from the United States for European publications for close to three decades.

It is an objective and perceptive study in depth of the American "national personality" and the habits, beliefs, illusions, ambitions and common purpose of the American people.

Friendly, and yet critical, "The Americans" is like a breath of fresh air in the stagnant intellectual atmosphere that currently plagues the United States.

Like Professor Marcuse, the high priest of the New Left and rioting students, Muehlen also came to the United States as a refugee from Nazi Germany.

But unlike Marcuse, who has only contempt for America's traditional values and democratic institutions, Muehlen sees the United States as the leader in humanity's quest for freedom and progress. He believes that American intellectuals, taking their cue from Marcuse and other arm-chair revolutionists, have been consistently guilty of presenting a false image of the United States.

In his penetrating analysis, Muehlen compares "the power and influence" of present-day intellectuals and vocal professors to the power of the economic "robber barons" who sought to dominate American economic and spiritual life at the turn of the century.

In an orgy of self-hate, the intellectuals, white and black, borrow and copy half-baked revolutionary ideas from false and shallow prophets. But they ignore or discard American history and unprecedented social achievement as "so much rubbish or historic souvenirs."

Of course, as Muehlen sees it, Americans have negative traits. He believes, among other things, that they treat nature as "the enemy of the people." They are ever eager for change. They are ever impatient.

Even the advocates of "black power," who ostensibly seek a total break with American history, have acquired such basic American traits as impatience, the illusion that age-long problems can be solved overnight and the tendency to exaggerate social evils.

But the areas of strength in American society are vastly greater than the areas of weakness. If Americans make as many grave mistakes as other people, they are more likely to correct them. Muehlen proves this by a detailed analysis of the past and present foreign policy of the United States.

Nor does he agree, as the intellectuals claim, that American society is "sick" or that Americans have lost their way in a fast-changing world. Such views and prognostications are as old as America itself. What they indicate is that American society is still as eager to experiment and improve itself as ever before.

While America and Americans are growing older," Muehlen concludes, "they are still in their best years."

His book, when it appears in an English translation, could be read with profit especially by the politicians and their pollsters who constantly give bad ratings to the "American image" abroad.

The United States, Muehlen points out, is a great nation which need not engage in popularity contests. Moreover, in international relations, "prestige" is a relative concept. Compared with Russia's sinking popularity even among Communists since the student riots in Europe and Moscow's attempt to destroy Czechoslovakia's freedom, America's image is bright indeed.

Ten and Twenty Years Ago

Sept. 5, 1948 — Outcome of negotiations in the New York City truck strike were being watched with keen concern by many local interests since the strike in the metropolitan area had its effect on several local firms and the shipment of many commodities.

Kingston captured a Colonial League playoff berth. The playoffs were to begin the following week in Poughkeepsie.

Sept. 5, 1958 — Calling attention to the "pressing educational problem" of the Kingston area, the board of education urged the State Commissioner to appoint an impartial committee from the state at large to explore the problem and recommend "appropriate action."

Reaction to Kingston's first elementary summer school was generally favorable, according to the results of a questionnaire distributed to parents of the 140 children who attended.

Robert Koch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Koch of Kingston was guest of honor at a surprise party given recently at the home of his parents. The occasion marked his departure for service with the U.S. Air Force.

For too long have the negative actions of mis-guided teenagers been given the far greater share of publicity. It is time that affirmative, healthy and positive activities by teenagers be recognized. They deserve no less.

The vast majority of our youth are sincere and well-adjusted. Their interest and desire to form a teenage youth center is an important step to become responsible citizens. They are right - thinking youngsters heading in the proper direction. Let us encourage them.

To recognize the needs of the young is to understand the importance of this project. Teenagers look to the adults, their parents and community leaders, for guidance. We have no right to fail them. Parental absenteeism should not exist on a matter of such importance.

The welfare of our youth come far ahead of Urban Renewal, better highways or beautification of streets. There can be no question where the priorities lie.

To deny the teenagers an opportunity for social self-development is to confirm unfounded and ugly rumors of indifference. Let everyone encourage the Town Board to finalize their excellent civic gesture.

All parents, community residents, organizational representatives and local officials are urged to attend the meeting of the Town Board. The needs of our children are a reality. THE TIME IS NOW!

This is a summary of diseases caused by pigeons. Much of this information is from Diseases Of Man Acquired From His Pets by B. Bissler, (c) B. Bissler, 1967, published by J. B. Lippincott Company Philadelphia, and my own personal experience.

The ancestry of pigeons goes back to the cliff dwelling rock dove (Columba livia), which was thought to be the first bird domesticated as a pet or trapped for food (probably not true since the goose is now thought to be the first domesticated bird). The pigeon was used by the Chinese during the seventh century for delivering messages. Early sailors kept pigeons as pets and, when released, indicated the position of land mass. Being cliff dwellers, pigeons do not nest in trees but prefer perches offered on ornamental buildings in cities.

The great increase in pigeon population has led to nuisances such as: noisy cooing, getting underfoot, damage to property from excreta, air pollution from dust created by dried fecal matter, feathers and sometimes infestation from insects known as mites.

There are probably many diseases transmitted to man by pigeons but only a few have been thoroughly investigated and accepted as being causally related. I will refer only to those. A. Bird fanciers disease: a type of recurrent pulmonary disease in some individuals characterized by cough, shortness of breath, fever and shivering when exposed to excreta of pigeons. The disease is similar to so-called farmers' lung which is caused by a fungus in the dust of mouldy hay.

B. Ornithosis (psittacosis): an acute infectious disease which may be fatal and is acquired from sick or healthy pigeons and psittacine birds. This is characterized by fever, cough, headache and occasionally a rash. Over 50 per cent of the pigeons of the world have been shown to have been infected as a result of antibody testing. We have seen several cases in New York City and suspect that many go undiagnosed as either bronchitis or viral pneumonia.

C. Cryptococcosis: a fungus disease causing a mild pneumonia with cough and fever or severe and frequently fatal meningitis. Some mycologists (specialists in fungus infections) believe that the pneumonic form of the disease is not uncommon but fortunately the meningitic type is. It is particularly in Individuals with other severe basic diseases that brain inflammation with this fungus occurs. The fungus is excreted in the stool by many pigeons.

D. Histoplasmosis: another fungal disease causing lung infections from which most individuals recover. The fungus grows best in acid soil so that it is often not a major problem in the large cities.

E. Pigeon mites (dermanyssus gallinae): may cause dermatitis (skin inflammation) in people in contact with these pests. Office workers exposed to these mites in buildings where pigeons nest have been affected.

F. Avian tuberculosis: causes lung infections, enlargement of the lymph glands of the neck and is apparently contracted from pigeons on rare occasions. The organism is excreted into the soil via the fecal route.

G. Several other viral, bacterial and parasitic diseases are thought to be transmitted by pigeons but the relationship in this regard is not yet proven.

H. Control of pigeons is a difficult matter for many reasons. Recently oral contraceptive pills were added to pigeon feed which reduces egg laying by 80 per cent. Perhaps this method of reducing pigeon population is acceptable to all interested parties.

Your publication of Tuesday evening, August 13, 1968, has been brought to my attention, wherein, on the front page, under the article "DUDE RANCH - ANIMAL NEGLECT," you report an arrest at an animal dude farm near High Falls.

The article states that "Sheriff Martin upon questioning Douglas Kearsley, a caretaker of the property, learned that the owner was Wilbur Smith of High Falls, who is mostly in New York City and comes to the ranch on weekends."

From a reading of the article it might appear that I was involved somehow in the alleged neglect of these animals. For the purpose of the record I would like you to publish in your newspaper the fact that these animals did not belong to me, nor did I have any interest in these animals.

The facts, as I understand them, are as follows: Campbell White of Dexter

Drive, Pinebush, asked my permission in the latter part of June of this year, to graze his animals upon my property. I consented with the understanding that I would take no responsibility and that I was to get no payment for this permission.

Since 1956 my wife and I have been operating a dude ranch at High Falls, under the name of Clove Valley Dude Ranch. We open the ranch about May 30th and close the day after Labor Day.

In the normal operation of our dude ranch we hire horses for the use of our guests, and make sure that all the animals are well taken care of while in our custody. After Labor Day we return these horses to the owners. For personal reasons we did not open the dude ranch during the 1968 season.

On Sunday, August 11, 1968, my caretaker was advised that many of the animals were roaming on the road and suggestion was made to him that he lock them in the barn for safety reasons. Sunday night he put five animals in the barn, which was the first and only time these animals were ever kept in the barn.

My farm land consists of 238 acres, all of which is good grazing land. There is a stream running thru the acreage, so that there is ample feed and water for five horses for grazing purposes.

From a reading of the article it would appear that I was involved in either renting or sheltering these horses for hire. I would like an explanation in your paper to explain to my neighbors in High Falls and to my own clientele, who have been visiting my dude ranch for many years, that these horses were not mine and were brought there in that condition and that neither my wife nor I nor Clover Valley Dude Ranch was in any way involved in this alleged neglect.

Very truly yours,
WILBUR SMITH

'The Americans'

By LEON DENNEN

NEW YORK (NEA) — While it is fashionable these days for assorted intellectuals, here and abroad, to bait "decadent" America, a book just published in West Germany depicts the United States as a land of freedom, progress and promise.

Entitled "The Americans," the book was written by Norbert Mühlen, an eminent German-born newspaperman who has been reporting from the United States for close to three decades.

It is an objective and perceptive study in depth of the American "national personality" and the habits, beliefs, illusions, ambitions and common purpose of the American people.

Friendly, and yet critical, "The Americans" is like a breath of fresh air in the stagnant intellectual atmosphere that currently plagues the United States.

Like Professor Marcuse, the high priest of the New Left and rioting students, Mühlen also came to the United States as a refugee from Nazi Germany.

But unlike Marcuse, who has only contempt for America's traditional values and democratic institutions, Mühlen sees the United States as the leader in humanity's quest for freedom and progress. He believes that American intellectuals, taking their cue from Marcuse and other arm-chair revolutionists, have been consistently guilty of presenting a false image of the United States.

In his penetrating analysis, Mühlen compares "the power and influence" of present-day intellectuals and vocal professors to the power of the economic "robber barons" who sought to dominate America's economic and spiritual life at the turn of the century.

In an orgy of self-hate, the intellectuals, white and black, borrow and copy half-baked revolutionary ideas from false and shallow prophets. But they ignore or discard American history and unprecedented social achievement as "so much rubbish or historic souvenirs."

Of course, as Mühlen sees it, Americans have negative traits. He believes, among other things, that they treat nature as "the enemy of the people." They are ever eager for change. They are ever impatient.

Even the advocates of "black power," who ostensibly seek a total break with American history, have acquired such basic American traits as impatience, the illusion that age-long problems can be solved overnight and the tendency to exaggerate social evils.

But the areas of strength in American society are vastly greater than the areas of weakness. If Americans make as many grave mistakes as other people, they are more likely to correct them. Mühlen proves this by a detailed analysis of the past and present foreign policy of the United States.

Nor does he agree, as the intellectuals claim, that American society is "sick" or that Americans have lost their way in a fast-changing world. Such views and prognostications are as old as America itself. What they indicate is that American society is still as eager to experiment and improve itself as ever before.

While America and Americans are growing older," Mühlen concludes, "they are still in their best years."

His book, when it appears in an English translation, could be read with profit especially by the politicians and their pollsters who constantly give bad ratings to the "American image" abroad.

The United States, Mühlen points out, is a great nation which need not engage in popularity contests.

Moreover, in international relations, "prestige" is a relative concept. Compared with Russia's sinking popularity even among Communists since the student riots in Europe and Moscow's attempt to destroy Czechoslovakia's freedom, America's image is bright indeed.

Ten and Twenty Years Ago

Sept. 5, 1948 — Outcome of negotiations in the New York City truck strike were being watched with keen concern by many local interests since the strike in the metropolitan area had its effect on several local firms and the shipment of many commodities.

Kingston captured a Colonial League playoff berth. The playoffs were to begin the following week in Poughkeepsie.

Sept. 5, 1958 — Calling attention to the "pressing educational problem" of the Kingston area, the board of education urged the State Commissioner to appoint an impartial committee from the state at large to explore the problem and recommend "appropriate action."

Reaction to Kingston's first elementary summer school was generally favorable, according to the results of a questionnaire distributed to parents of the 140 children who attended.

Robert Koch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Koch of Kingston was guest of honor at a surprise party given recently at the home of his parents. The occasion marked his departure for service with the U.S. Air Force.

Striking Teachers Delay School Start

Teachers striking over salary and other grievances have postponed the opening of the fall school term for thousands of pupils around the nation.

In Michigan, 67,700 youngsters continued their summer vacation as 12 districts remained closed. Teachers in another 35 districts agreed to work while contract talks continue.

The New York City public school system with 1.1-million students was threatened with a repeat of last fall's teachers' strike as the head of the teachers union said he would recommend a walkout Monday.

Last ditch negotiations between teachers and the school board continued in Philadelphia to avert a strike in the 276,000-pupil system which starts classes Friday.

A teacher boycott in East St. Louis, Ill., was in its second week with 23,600 pupils affected. Negotiations Wednesday were fruitless as the 900-teacher union sought higher pay and a formal working agreement.

In Madison, Ill., where some 35 of the town's 3,000 pupils picketed to get back in class, the school board went to court in an effort to return teachers to their jobs.

About 100 teachers submitted mass resignations which the school board refused to honor. The board sought a circuit court judgment to determine if he could hire replacements for teachers who refused to report.

There were 10,000 school children out of class in East Chicago, Ind., public schools with 500 teachers striking for higher pay, smaller classes and a guarantee of a textbook for every child.

The 500 teachers in the Clarksville-Montgomery County, Tenn., school system walked out Tuesday night to protest budget cuts. Registration for 14,000 pupils—many dependents of servicemen, Ft. Campbell, Ky., Army base—was set for Friday.

Darien, Conn., teachers voted to stay away from classes again today to support demand for higher pay. Affected were about 5,200 pupils in the city's 10 public schools.

East Haven, Conn., schools with 6,000 pupils were hit by a strike with the dispute reported centering on inclusion of teachers' families in medical insurance.

Despite some tension, classes in all but one of Boston's 189 schools opened without incident. The exception was the Gibson school in the Dorchester section where a group of Negro parents said they would renew a sit-in to force the transfer of a newly appointed white principal and his replacement by a Negro principal of their own choice.

Johnston, R.I., public schools were prevented from opening Wednesday when bus drivers reported sick. Their union's negotiations with the school committee for a new contract have been stalled several months.

Edward A. Hammers Dies, Former Professor at UCCC

Edward A. Hammers, former assistant professor of mathematics at Ulster County Community College, died Monday at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Batavia, after a long illness.

Mr. Hammers joined the UCCC faculty Sept. 1, 1964, a year after the college opened, and remained until June, 1967. For the last year he was an assistant professor of mathematics at Genesee Community College in Batavia, where he resided.

He was born June 19, 1923, in St. Cloud, Minn., and after graduation from Perham, Minn., high school, he enlisted in the U.S. Navy. After being in the Navy a year, he transferred to the U.S. Marine Air Corps., where he served three years in the Pacific Theater in World War II.

During the war, he attained the rank of captain and flew Corsair fighter planes under the command of Joe Foss, a Marine ace of World War II who later became governor of South Dakota.

Flew With Lindy
While serving in the Pacific, Mr. Hammers was credited with shooting down a Japanese plane and with blowing up an ammunition supply depot for which he received the Air Medal with one gold star. He also flew two missions with Col. Charles Lindbergh while in the Pacific War zone.

After his discharge, he attended St. John's University in Collegeville, Minn., for two years. He then became self-employed, and later moved to Niagara Falls where he was employed as a chemical analyst at the Olins-Matheson Chemical Corp.

While in that area, he continued his higher education at Niagara University and received his B.A. Degree cum laude in 1960. He taught in the Niagara school system as a mathematics teacher until 1963, when he received a National Science Foundation Scholarship to further his studies in mathematics at Boston College.

He received his M.A. Degree there in 1965.

When on the UCCC faculty, Mr. Hammers was coordinator of mathematics and was chairman of a committee that worked on drawing up the Faculty Organization.

Survivors include his wife, Nelda Kathryn, and three children, E. Martin, 14, Lora Denise, 13, and Daniel John, 12; four brothers, Frank, Osseo, Minn., J. Donald, Creston, Iowa; Robert, Perham, Minn.; and Joseph, Osseo, Minn., and three sisters, Mrs. Richard A. Eickes, Perham, Minn., Mrs. Raymond Henderson, Mitchell, S.D., and Mrs. James Limmer, Fergus Falls, Minn.

There was a prayer service at 8:30 a. m. today, at the H.E. Turner and Co. Inc. Funeral Home, 403 East Main Street, Batavia. Burial will be in St. Joseph's Seminary Calicoon.

Donations may be made to the St. Joseph's Serraphic Seminary, Calicoon.

Striking Teachers Delay School Start

Teachers striking over salary and other grievances have postponed the opening of the fall school term for thousands of pupils around the nation.

In Michigan, 67,700 youngsters continued their summer vacations as 12 districts remained closed. Teachers in another 35 districts agreed to work while contract talks continue.

The New York City public school system with 1.1-million students was threatened with a repeat of last fall's teachers' strike as the head of the teachers union said he would recommend a walkout Monday.

Last ditch negotiations between teachers and the school board continued in Philadelphia to avert a strike in the 276,000-pupil system which starts classes Friday.

A teacher boycott in East St. Louis, Ill., was in its second week with 23,600 pupils affected. Negotiations Wednesday were fruitless as the 900-teacher union sought higher pay and a formal working agreement.

In Madison, Ill., where some 35 of the town's 3,000 pupils picketed to get back in class, the school board went to court in an effort to return teachers to their jobs.

About 100 teachers submitted mass resignations which the school board refused to honor. The board sought a circuit court judgment to determine if he could hire replacements for teachers who refused to report.

There were 10,000 school children out of class in East Chicago, Ind., public schools with 500 teachers striking for higher pay, smaller classes and a guarantee of a textbook for every child.

The 500 teachers in the Clarksville-Montgomery County, Tenn., school system walked out Tuesday night to protest budget cuts. Registration for 14,000 pupils—many dependents of servicemen, Ft. Campbell, Ky., Army base—was set for Friday.

Darien, Conn., teachers voted to stay away from classes again today to support demand for higher pay. Affected were about 5,200 pupils in the city's 10 public schools.

East Haven, Conn., schools with 6,000 pupils were hit by a strike with the dispute reported centering on inclusion of teachers' families in medical insurance.

Despite some tension, classes in all but one of Boston's 189 schools opened without incident. The exception was the Gibson school in the Dorchester section where a group of Negro parents said they would renew a sit-in to force the transfer of a newly appointed white principal and her replacement by a Negro principal of their own choice.

Johnston, R.I., public schools were prevented from opening Wednesday when bus drivers reported sick. Their union's negotiations with the school committee for a new contract have been stalled several months.

While in that area, he continued his higher education at Niagara University and received his B.A. Degree cum laude in 1960. He taught in the Niagara school system as a mathematics teacher until 1963, when he received a National Science Foundation Scholarship to further his studies in mathematics at Boston College. He received his M.A. Degree there in 1965.

When on the UCCC faculty, Mr. Hammers was coordinator of mathematics and was chairman of a committee that

EDWARD A. HAMMERS worked on drawing up the Faculty Organization.

New Paltz Shopping Mart-- Employment Is Seen for 300

By CHARLES BERMPHOHL

Perhaps as many as 300 full and part time area residents will be employed by the large stores and small shops that are to be located in the Simmons New Paltz Plaza "sometime" before winter.

As of now, only the cement block walls of the Victory chain supermarket and the Barker's department store can be seen rising out of a 15-acre site that was, only a short time ago, a vacant field.

According to Austin Simmons, developer and general contractor of the shopping center, every building with the exception of the movie house will be "hopefully" constructed by November.

Simmons was the developer of the 12-acre Saugerties plaza and the 18-acre Hudson location.

To be constructed at the site at the east end of the Village of New Paltz' Main Street will be, in addition to the supermarket and the department store, a branch of the Rondout National Bank, a dry cleaner, Carvel ice cream shop, liquor store, drug store and barber shop.

The Plaza Cinema, a specialty building that "should be closed in before the winter,"

Simmons explained, will be owned by Spyros Lenas who owns a string of about 10 movie theatres throughout the state including one in Poughkeepsie and another in Newburgh.

The Barker's Department Store, headquartered in Fishkill, will contain some 70 departments included within 67,500 square feet of floor space, according to a spokesman for the department store chain.

The spokesman also said that the store will have a car service center, a garden shop, and although it will not sell the more traditional furniture, it will offer patio and garden furniture.

Simmons claimed that 100,000 square feet of land area within the center had already been leased to developers, and that parking space would include enough room for about 800 to 900 automobiles.

An unusual aspect of the plaza will be the man made stone exteriors of the buildings within the shopping complex.

Simmons claimed that the design was in line with the area's colonial atmosphere.

The roofs of the buildings will have the colonial-effect split shingles.

Sub contractor for the huge project is Dandini, Engineers and Builders from Leominster, Mass.

Wawarsing Seeks Rec Guidelines for Youth

Wawarsing Supervisor Frank W. Harkin is currently looking toward additional ideas to make his youth program a success.

Last Saturday, the Thirsty Ear coffee shop, originally run by Marist brothers, closed down because of the lack of a director.

Harkin, who commented favorably on the success of the coffee house venture, said that he was seeking some other place for Wawarsing youth to go after school hours.

The Republican supervisor claimed that he had asked for some "guidelines" from Mrs. Fannie Lawson of Stony Point, regional director of the New York State Youth Commission. He further claimed that although the hamlets of Napanoch and Kerhonkson along with the Village of Ellenville had organized recreational programs, "none of these organizations have developed a teen center."

One-Armed Bandits

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — The most popular form of game in this gambling city is still the slot machine. Of the more than 13,000 slot machines in Clark County (Las Vegas) the nickel machine is a runaway favorite.

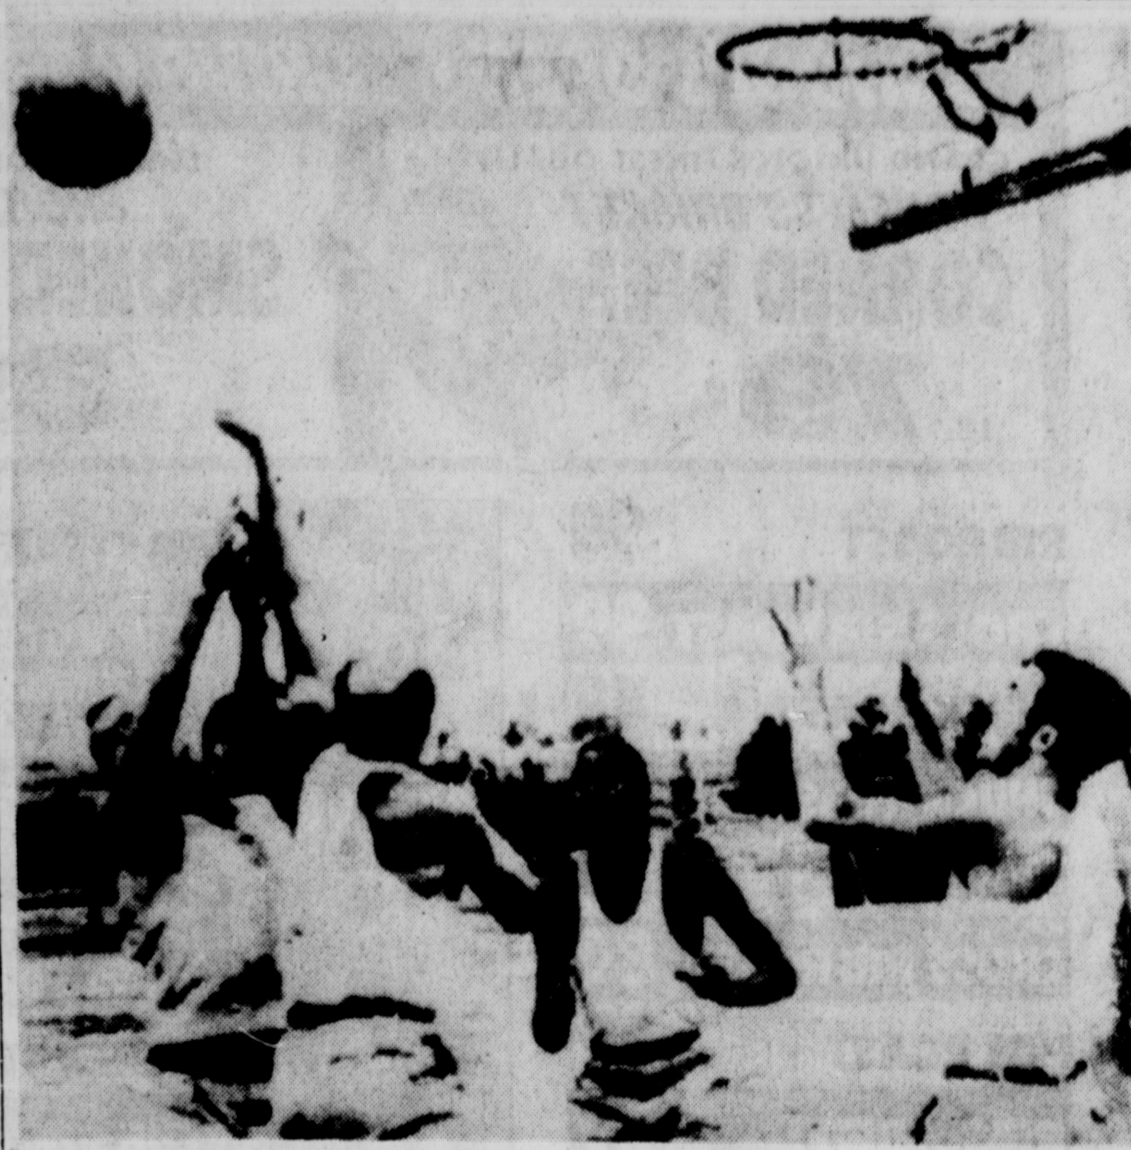

Harkin said that what was needed was a "social life program" for the area's youngsters.

The Wawarsing administrator has offered desk space for youth program officials in the town offices in Ellenville.

Harkin, who appointed himself director of the Wawarsing Youth Program, is assisted by co-chairmen Margaret Eckert and William Baglieter, both of Ellenville.

"Our youngsters do have problems," said Harkin, and he added that many teenagers have come to him and declared that they want to become more of a part of the community. Recently, the supervisor set up a four-point program that would have young people organizing a transportation pool for senior citizens, a course on voting machine use, establishment of a teenage employment center, and he has put the young in charge of the town's beautification program.

Harkin, who appointed himself director of the Wawarsing Youth Program, is assisted by co-chairmen Margaret Eckert and William Baglieter, both of Ellenville.

"Our youngsters do have problems," said Harkin, and he added that many teenagers have come to him and declared that they want to become more of a part of the community. Recently, the supervisor set up a four-point program that would have young people organizing a transportation pool for senior citizens, a course on voting machine use, establishment of a teenage employment center, and he has put the young in charge of the town's beautification program.

Replacement For Slutsky On Planning

Charles Slutsky, general manager of the Fallsview Hotel, has resigned from the Wawarsing Planning Board. William Badner, a Briggs Highway bungalow colony owner, has been recommended to replace Slutsky. The recommendation was made by planning board Chairman Harold Sashin and will be presented to the Wawarsing Town Board for action at tonight's meeting.

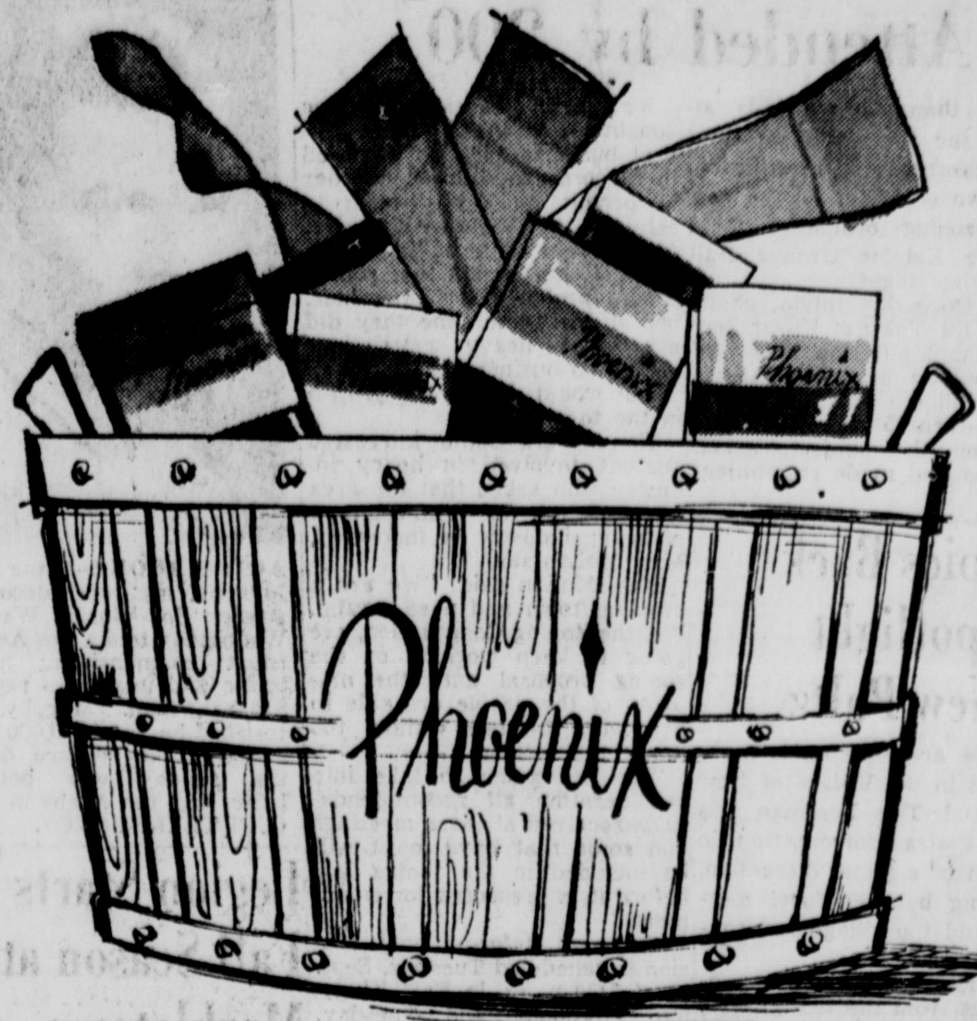

According to Sashin, Slutsky could not attend planning board meetings because of military reserve obligations. Reportedly the reserve meetings fell on the same night as the board meetings—Wednesday. Should the town board follow Sashin's recommendation, Badner will serve out the remainder of Slutsky's term, that is, until 1969. Tonight's town board meeting may also appoint Morris Solomon to the planning board.

His term expires this month. Sashin said that the planning board is currently working on plans for a zoning ordinance and a sub-division control ordinance which, he stated, should be ready by 1969.

The ordinance study is the result of a two-year program in which the Town of Wawarsing worked in conjunction with the Towns of Rochester, Hurley, Marlinton and Rosendale, with the aid of the planning consultant firm of Brown and Williams, headquarters in Teaneck, N. J.

Ulster Zone Hearing Is Attended by 200

More than 200 residents attended the first in a series of three informational meetings in the Town of Ulster on the proposed zoning ordinance, held at Lake Katrine Grange Hall Wednesday night.

Mrs. Doris E. Mulvin, chairman of the Town of Ulster Zoning Commission said copies of the proposed zoning ordinance were available at the meeting and between 25 and 30 persons spoke on the subject, asked questions and made recommendations.

Hippies Back In Spotlight At New Paltz

Hippies are once again making news in the Village of New Paltz, and The Freeman has learned that a confrontation, in the form of a panel discussion, is looming between local merchants and the village non-conformists.

The meeting, with six representatives from the two groups, will meet tonight, with a time and place still not known at this time.

Presenting the New Paltz "establishment" is insurance-

Several recommendations sought an extension of the general business area as proposed in the ordinance draft in order to permit more businesses to establish in the township. Mrs. Mulvin said some of the people at the meeting thought that zoning should protect the homeowner, but at the same time they did not want heavy restrictions placed on business and industry which would discourage growth in the township.

There were some interested persons involved in heavy industry who asked that the area allocated for the establishment of heavy industry be increased, Mrs. Mulvin said.

"We are going to take into consideration all recommendations received at these meetings and some that have merit will be included in the zoning law before it is presented for enactment."

The next informational session is scheduled Tuesday, Sept. 17 at 7:30 p. m. in East Kingston Firehouse and Tuesday, Sept. 24 at 7:30 p. m. in Spring Lake Firehouse.

Paltz Reports Courses for Area Schools

Schools in Kingston, Wappingers Falls, Middletown, and community colleges at Poughkeepsie and Suffern will be offered sites for graduate courses offered this fall by the State University College in New Paltz.

Registration for both on and off-campus credit courses will be held from Sept. 3 through 12. Students must have a bachelor's degree and be admitted to the college in order to register.

Off-campus, 21 later afternoon and evening courses are given in history, political science, literature, geography, mathematics, area studies, education, and research.

Over a hundred courses in sciences, humanities, education, mathematics, research, art, music and social sciences, are also being offered on campus evenings and Sunday mornings. For Kingston High School, courses offered are the History of Brazil and the Principles of Research on Thursday evenings, 6:30 and 9:00 p.m. beginning Sept. 26.

Chamber Official Lauds College Extension Class

A new extension course at Ulster County Community College was today lauded by Peter O. Allen, executive vice president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce. The evening course, The Process of Management, is being offered to members of the business community who want to improve their knowledge and quality, after this and a subsequent course, for a Diploma in Management. Allen noted that while the course is presented in cooperation with the insurance institute of America, it is of a general nature, presenting "an in-depth examination of contemporary management practices."

The course will be presented in thirteen sessions beginning Wednesday, Sept. 11, 7:30 to 9:30. Covered are such facets of the management process as: planning, policy making, staffing, the organization, development and training of managers, motivation, communication and leadership. Allen added that the course instructor will be Kenneth P. Pangburn, local insurance executive. It is also anticipated that Neil N. Whitehurst of the college faculty, will be a guest lecturer. Allen concluded by noting that a descriptive booklet concerning the course was available at the Chamber of Commerce offices at 17 Albany Avenue.

2 Drug Cases Put Over to September 11

The case of two New York City women arrested Sept. 1 and charged with the sale of a dangerous drug was adjourned to Wednesday, Sept. 11 at the request of their attorney who notified Town of Saugerties Justice Michael Catalinotto that he had a previous commitment.

The defendants are Sharon Ann Walley, 22, and Joanne Sadler, 20, both of 214 East 25th Street, New York City. The latter is a former resident of Poughkeepsie.

The two were arrested as the result of an undercover investigation during the weekend music festival, Soundin' at the Pan Copeland Farm on Glasco Turnpike, near Shultis Corners, Town of Saugerties. Thomas F. Mayone, county investigator of the district attorney's office and two BCI investigators of the state police, Joseph Ventriglia and W. E. Wiedemann were the arresting officers.

Investigator Mayone said both were charged with criminal sale of a dangerous drug in the third degree, a felony and arraigned before Justice Catalinotto and are now out on $100 bail.

Mayone charged the women were peddling a new packaged type of LSD called brown spot at $5 per spot. He said the brown spots on white paper were about the size of aspirin tablets. The purchasers chewed the brown spots and about a half hour later would be on the LSD trip that could last from 8 to 12 hours. If the dose is extra strong it could last for two days, and maybe forever, he said.

Acquit Trucker Involved in Double Death

After deliberating about an hour Wednesday afternoon, a City Court jury acquitted Wallace S. LaGrange, 41, of Westerlo, operator of a cement truck involved in a double-death traffic accident at East Chester Street and Flatbush Avenue on Aug. 5.

LaGrange was tried on a charge of operating a motor vehicle with inadequate brakes. A second charge of driving without a license was dismissed after an explanation by William C. Mullany, attorney for the truck driver.

Francis Vogt, assistant district attorney, prosecuted the case which was tried for about six hours before the verdict of the jury was returned. LaGrange was the operator of a cement truck owned by Chemical Leaman Tank Lines, Inc. of Albany, which was involved in a collision with a car driven by John Peter Watzka, 76, of Route 1, Kingston. Watzka and his wife, Margaret (Peggy O'Neill) Watzka, 69, were killed as the result of the collision. City Judge Hubert A. Richter presided at the trial.

All U.S. Pennies in 1943 were made of steel with a zinc coating.

Rosendale Slates Dog Ordinance Meet

A public hearing on a proposed dog ordinance will be held in the Town of Rosendale Wednesday, Sept. 18 at 7 p.m. in the Community Building at Maple Hill.

At a meeting of the town board last night, it was suggested that the proposed ordinance be patterned after one recently adopted by the Town of Ulster.

Basically, it calls for keeping dogs under control in that they may not be at-large unless restrained by an adequate collar and leash or accompanied by its owner or a responsible person able to control the animal.

Dangerous animals and dogs in heat must be confined and animals must be treated humanely.

Fines would be fixed as penalties if the law is violated.

In other business, the board voted to accept the lone bid of $3,375 for a crawler tractor. The bid was submitted by Day-empore Implement Company, High Falls.

The tractor purchase was made in order that the town have the proper equipment with which to carry out a landfill operation at the town dump.

It was announced that the town constabulary will distribute emergency telephone numbers to individual residences.

On recommendation of the Democratic county chairman, Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, the board accepted the appointment of Ruth Gheare as an inspector of election for the first election district.

Ulster Zone Hearing Is Attended by 200

More than 200 residents attended the first in a series of three informational meetings in the Town of Ulster on the proposed zoning ordinance, held at Lake Katrine Grange Hall Wednesday night.

Mrs. Doris E. Mulvin, chairman of the Town of Ulster Zoning Commission said copies of the proposed zoning ordinance were available at the meeting and between 25 and 30 persons spoke on the subject, asked questions and made recommendations.

Hippies Back In Spotlight At New Paltz

Hippies are once again making news in the Village of New Paltz, and The Freeman has learned that a confrontation, in the form of a panel discussion, is looming between local merchants and the village non-conformists.

The meeting, with six representatives from the two groups, will meet tonight, with a time and place still not known at this time.

Presenting the New Paltz "establishment" is insurance man William R. Morris. The hippies, or "individuals" as they want to be called, will be represented by Richard Rizzi and Dale Campbell.

The confrontation arose out of a meeting between Morris and some 90 of the hippie-individuals in the parking lot of the First National Bank of Highland, New Paltz office, on Sunday.

Presumably, the non-conformists are disturbed over what they believe is official harassment on the part of town and village officials.

The meeting will attempt to define what the "normal," "straight," or "establishment" people expect from the hippies, and what, in turn, the hippies expect from them.

Several recommendations sought an extension of the general business area as proposed in the ordinance draft in order to permit more businesses to establish in the township. Mrs. Mulvin said some of the people were of the opinion that zoning should protect the homeowner, but at the same time they did not want heavy restrictions placed on business and industry which would discourage growth in the township.

There were some interested persons involved in heavy industry who asked that the area allocated for the establishment of heavy industry be increased, Mrs. Mulvin said.

Mrs. Mulvin said, "We are a growing town and need zoning. We, the Zoning Commission, are going to keep working on the zoning proposal until the majority of the people are able to live with the law without too many restrictions."

"We are going to take into consideration all recommendations received at these meetings and some that have merit will be included in the zoning law before it is presented for enactment."

Campaign Financing Still Big Problem

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Politicians are forever thinking up new ways to raise funds, some of which are actually legal. Nevertheless, the financing of campaigns remains a problem. Last year's attempt to make political contributions a part of the income tax return seems already to have been forgotten, and no plan of similar scope has been advanced to replace it. Until now.

I spent a good part of my vacation this year thinking about the problem, and I may have hit upon a solution. It came to me one day as I was reading the Wall Street Journal. Why not get Congress to pass a law permitting presidential candidates to sell stock in themselves.

The stock, of course, would have no value. But as best I can tell from what I read about the stock market, value is only a minor consideration among investors.

It appears that most people buy stocks not with the idea of acquiring something of value but something they can sell in a few days at a profit. So the important thing is the price.

Stock prices, in turn, are influenced by all sorts of factors that generally have no connection with the stocks.

(This may not be the way the Securities and Exchange Commission sees it, but it sure looks that way to me.)

Under my plan, when a presidential candidate announces for office he issues 1,000,000 shares of stock in himself at, say, $5 per share. The would net him five million dollars, which should be enough to tide him over the New Hampshire primary at least.

Then his name goes up on the big board at the New York Stock Exchange and his stock is traded on the open.

At the end of each day, the quotations are assembled and sent out over the ticker as the Dow-Jones presidential average. It should be better than the Gallup Poll as an indication of how the candidates are doing. The beauty of it is that it would eliminate the danger of a candidate becoming beholden to a few big contributors.

Let us say, for example, that you buy 100 shares of Harold Stassen at $6.35 a share. This doesn't necessarily mean you are supporting Stassen. It only means you are trying to make a quick buck.

After all, many non-smokers own tobacco company stock. Presidential stock would be traded all through the primaries and the national conventions right up to the eve of the November election.

Then, after the campaign was over, the shareholders would write the whole thing off as a tax loss and everyone would be happy.

The younger boy said David was traveling downhill when apparently the front wheel of the bike collapsed and the bicycle ran off the highway through a fence and into a rock ledge along the Mt. Airy Road near Blue Mountain, Town of Saugerties.

Blue Mountain Boy Injured

David Bright, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bright of Fawn Road, Blue Mountain is in Kingston Hospital in serious condition as a result of a bicycle mishap Tuesday afternoon on Mt. Airy Road near his home.

Saugerties Ambulance Service took the boy to Kingston Hospital.

Campaign Financing Still Big Problem

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Politicians are forever thinking up new ways to raise funds, some of which are actually legal. Nevertheless, the financing of campaigns remains a problem. Last year's attempt to make political contributions a part of the income tax return seems already to have been forgotten, and no plan of similar scope has been advanced to replace it. Until now.

I spent a good part of my vacation this year thinking about the problem, and I may have hit upon a solution. It came to me one day as I was reading the Wall Street Journal. Why not get Congress to pass a law permitting presidential candidates to sell stock in themselves.

Bell Wants Homeowner Tax Relief on Education

H. Clark Bell, Republican candidate for the Assembly, appearing at the annual meeting of Woodstock Township Taxpayers Association recently pledged that he would work for the relief of homeowners from the school tax.

Observing that the "pay rate" of welfare recipients is twice that for workers, Bell said that public education must provide the essential tools to equip youth for life. He emphasized that the homeowner cannot bear the burden of $1.5 billion for education, which comes out of real property taxes. Real estate "is not a fair form of taxation in this day and age," Bell stated.

Bell advocated that the state take over the entire cost of free public education, using a broad tax base, which would include the personal income tax, sales tax, corporation taxes, taxes on banking institutions, and other taxes, to support school expenditures, which have increased 400 per cent in the last eight years.

Walter H. Schulman, WTTA president and chairman of its special committee on the Woodstock Town Dump reported on the town dump hearing held by the Woodstock Town Board in mid-August.

Fire Auxiliary Offers First Aid Course

Mrs. Howard Humphries, president, announced that the total membership of the Ladies Auxiliary now numbers 71, including both active and supporting members. The membership drive is underway and interested women are asked to either contact or write to auxiliary members.

Savago Appoints Five Residents To County Rec, Parks Commission

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Five county residents were named today by County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago to the newly established County Recreation and Parks Commission.

They are Legislators Richard D. Nace of Orlando Street, (R. 2nd District) and Eugene O. Corey of Wallkill, (R. 9th District); Joseph W. Benjamin, Blue Mountain, Town of Saugerties; Michael J. Perry, Kingston, and William Barnes, Port Ewen.

Established in July, The Recreation and Parks Commission was established at the July meeting of the County Legislature for the purpose of investigating and studying all feasible sites that may be utilized for all forms of recreation and to determine those which may be developed. This would include types, sizes and locations of facilities, projected construction and maintenance costs, and state or federal grants available.

According to the Legislature's resolution, the commission will consist of five residents from various geographical areas. They shall be appointed by the chairman of the Legislature for terms of five years at no salary. The initially appointed group shall draw for the 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 year terms respectively, and then elect a chairman to serve as such for one year.

An amount not to exceed $500 has been allocated from the contingency fund for any initial expenses incurred. Eventual funding will be appropriated in the next budget.

Nace served as tax collector for the Town of Ulster and is a Republican committeeman in his township. He is a past president of the Chambers School P-TA, a member of the official board and finance committee of Clinton Avenue Methodist Church and a trustee of Town of Ulster Library. He is employed by the City of New York as a civil engineering draftsman in the city's real estate division office at Shokan.

Corey, a resident of Wallkill since 1937 is prominent in civic activities. He is a charter member of Shawangunk Valley Fire Department and is currently fire chief and an active member of its ambulance corps. He is a member and past president of Wallkill Lions Club and helped organize Cub Pack 96 in his community. A graduate of Wallkill High School, he attended Cornell University and graduated from Helmer Olivers School of Floral Design in New York City. He and his wife, Marylin and four children own and operate Corey Greenhouses at Briunswick in Wallkill.

Native of Saugerties, Benjamin, a native of Saugerties is extremely active in his community. His memberships include St. John's Church, Veterans; Centerville Fire Company, Sawyerkill Country Club, CHVB, Approved Basketball Officials, Collegiate Basketball Association, and has been active in civic fund raising drives and several trade and industrial associations. He is prominent in the sports activities of his community and is a former high school, college and semi-pro baseball player. He had signed a contract with the San Francisco Giants. He is associated with Saugerties Softball League as player-manager and is interested in fishing and hunting, youth activities and neighborhood and community activity programs. Benjamin is sales manager, gasoline, with Amos Post Inc., Catskill. He and his wife, Elizabeth and two children reside at Blue Mountain Park. He graduated from St. Mary of the Snow School, Saugerties High School and Rider College, Trenton, N. J.

Perry, instructor of physical education at Ulster County Community College has a wide experience in the recreation field. Prior to his present position he was director of the Recreation Supervision Program at UCCC. A native of Kingston, he resides at East Chester Street Extension, At UCCC, he coaches golf and basketball and was coordinator of Student Financial Aid Program. During his service in the Army, he was a first lieutenant in the Field Artillery and participated in a large variety of sports activity. Perry graduated from Siena College where he received a MS in education and BS in economics. He spent several summers as counselor or director at various boys camps. Perry served on sports and education committees of Kingston Lions Club and is a member of three associations of basketball referees.

Barnes, a native of Saugerties is associated with Perry as tournament chairman of the college's basketball team. He is employed by Hanstein Insurance Company and spends much of his free time at the YMCA and in church work at Holy Cross Episcopal Church in Port Ewen where he resides. He graduated from Kingston High School and St. John's University in Wisconsin. He and his wife Carolyn have two children.

TEACHER WORKSHOP—Participating in a pre-school teacher workshop at Rondout Valley Central School recently were Mrs. Marie Roosa, Mrs. Concetta DeLeo, Mrs. John Westover and Miss Julia Nucci. Mrs. Dorothy Kelder, center, performs an elementary science experiment as part of the training session.

Moscow 'Unity' Periled

MOSCOW (UPI)—A major casualty of the Soviet-Czech crisis will be the much publicized and laboriously prepared November "unity" congress in Moscow of world Communist parties, according to diplomatic observers.

The Kremlin, beginning with former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's efforts in the early 1960, has made it a key project to gather the world parties to try to put the pieces of the international movement broken by the Red Chinese defection from the Moscow line.

"The day you call the congress, you will be digging your own grave," Peking warned. But the Russians under Khrushchev's successors persisted and finally got more than one half of the 90-odd parties to a meeting in Budapest last March who agreed to hold the congress this November.

Now, the further disarray in the movement caused by the military intervention in Czechoslovakia, will cause at least a postponement, if not cancellation of the congress, informed observers here believe.

The Budapest preparatory congress was boycotted by China, North Korea, North Vietnam and Japan and was attended only by a few Asian parties which are split into pro-Peking and pro-Moscow factions.

Yugoslavia and Cuba did not attend and Romania walked out when a Syrian Communist accused that country of being pro-Zionist, nationalistic and ungrateful to the Soviet Union.

A subsequent preparatory meeting was held in mid-summer. The influential Italian and French parties, despite their reservations about a world congress, attended and with other European Communist parties agreed to attend the Moscow congress, reluctantly.

But those parties as well as the British and all other nonruling European Communists with the exception of those of Luxembourg, West Berlin, and the illegal West German party have been highly critical of Soviet policy in Czechoslovakia.

They became downright hostile when the Warsaw Pact force entered Czechoslovakia. French and Italian Communist leaders, it has been reported, now are thinking in terms of organizing a regional European Communist organization, independent of Moscow and Peking.

The Communist movement has suffered another severe jolt comparable to Khrushchev's debunking of Stalin, the Soviet-Chinese quarrel or the earlier Stalin era purges.

Pleasure Boat Industry Unveiling 1969 Lines, Chrysler Marine Products Lists 7 New Models

NEW YORK (UPI)—The pleasure boat industry, like its automobile counterpart, has begun announcing its 1969 models.

Among the first to unveil its next year's line is Chrysler Corp., whose marine products include boats and inboard and outboard engines.

The boat line features seven all-new models with cathedral hulls in a series of 14, 15 and 16-foot fiberglass craft. The series includes two runabouts, a utility and a pair of bowriders. All are outboard boats, but the 16-footers also are available with inboard-outboard power.

Altogether, the 1969 Chrysler boat line totals 44 basic models of fiberglass and aluminum craft ranging from 12 to 24 feet in length.

Chrysler also offers three models of fiberglass sailboats—a 16-footer and two at 13 feet. Chrysler's outboard engine line includes four models with horsepower ratings not previously offered—55, 70, seven and five. The 1969 line adds up to a total of 39 models ranging from 3½ to 105 horsepower.

The new 85 and 70 are three-cylinder engines and Chrysler labels the 85 "the most powerful three-cylinder outboard on the market." And it claims the 70 "will outrun any other outboard in its class."

The Chrysler inboard line for 1969 includes five new engines and a new outdrive. The new models include two four-cylinder power plants, two V8s and a "six."

The four-cylinder models are 122-cubic-inch engines—the Chrysler-Volvo 130 inboard-outdrive and the Chrysler-Volvo 115 inboard. A 225-horsepower V8 and a 155-horsepower "six" have been introduced as both inboard and inboard-outdrive models, and there is a new 200-horsepower V8.

The new Commando Model 250 outdrive is described as a successor to the company's Model 200. The company says its design and construction

"enable it to operate with exceptional smoothness and quietness."

Altogether, there are eight inboard-outdrive models and 12 inboards in the line.

The big event of the unlimited hydroplane racing season—the Gold Cup—will be staged Sept. 8 at Detroit over a five-lap, three-mile course on the Detroit River. The race offers a total purse of $40,000.

In the recent Single-handed

Transatlantic Yacht Race from Plymouth, England, to Newport, R.I., the last man to finish among the 18 contestants was Michael Richey—and it's a good thing he likes rice.

Richey, who took 58 days, 9 hours and 13 minutes to make the 3,100-mile voyage, took a southern route looking for southwesterly trade winds which did not materialize.

Richey was becalmed for two weeks and for the last three days had nothing to eat but rice.

Americans Migrating to Land Down Under Warned That Suitable Jobs Hard to Find

SYDNEY (AP)—More material that 3,600 Americans migrating to Australia in the second half of 1967, which in numbers puts them only behind British, Germans, Greeks, Italians and Yugoslavians.

Over a year, the editorial said, the chamber receives some 900 inquiries from Americans who want to live in Australia. Reasons, it said, differ but among them are:

"Australia is one of the last great outposts still offering developmental possibilities." "Stability." "Refuge from racial conflicts."

"Absence of social conflicts, violence, low crime rate."

"More leisurely pace of life."

"Australia's role as a U.S. ally in three wars."

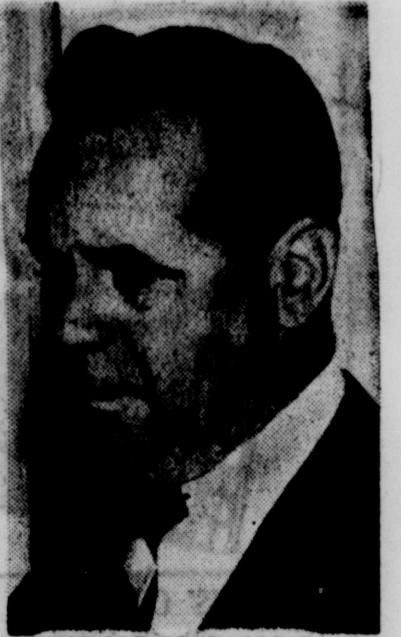

"Mining boom."

Stating that the caliber of the would-be American migrant was unusually high, the editorial said: "The overwhelming percentage of inquiries received by the Chamber are from college graduates or students completing their studies. There are engineers, chemists, lawyers, computer programmers, librarians, statisticians and analysts, qualified social service workers, teachers, ranchers."

Then it went on: "It has been the Chamber's experience that most of these valuable additions to the Australian work force experience great trouble in locating suitable employment—jobs where their capacities are fruitfully employed."

"Although it is no longer true to say that the self-trained Australian business leader is suspicious of the university graduate with special skills, the old school dies hard and the newcomer with the bright ideas does sometimes have to fight against conservative management that throws up barriers against change."

HRVC Anticipates More Projects, Ulster Had 17 of 202 During Year

The Hudson River Valley Commission's first year of formal project review activity, involving 202 submitted projects and 127 decisions on these, would be a busy one for any agency charged with examining all kinds of building activities in an area.

In the Commission's unusual busier one and demonstrated the great amount of activity taking place along the Hudson River these days, said Bruce E. Howlett, associate director.

"You must remember that the Hudson is about 300 miles long," he said. "The Commission has jurisdiction on both sides, except that small portion in New Jersey. Negotiations are under way to bring that section within the Commission's responsibility, too, but for now it is limited to New York State."

"Within that 300 miles or so, any project that might have a significant effect on the Valley comes with the Commission's review responsibility if within one mile of the river's bank on either side—or within two miles if the site is visible from the river."

Frederick Elmiger, chief of project review, said many factors are involved in a Commission review of any proposal: "When we review a project, different factors are studied and weighed in making a staff recommendation, which is then submitted to the nine Commissioners who make the final decision. More than 50 factors are involved, including such things as the proposal's effects on all kinds of resources, its possible effects in terms of the many kinds of pollution or physical hazard, its physical suitability to the involved site and area, even its side effects, which might be overlooked otherwise.

"By 'side effects' I mean whether the proposal might increase the need for road access, whether it needs rail or river access, its water supply and water treatment requirements not only for now but for a predictable future, whether it would increase need for any public services including education, all kinds of things."

Zoning Important
Economic results of the projects and human consequences, if any, also are considered, Elmiger said. "Often the long-range human side of a project is forgotten while attention is paid to preparing a plan for the site and the structures involved. It's part of our job to make sure that it's remembered as early as possible."

"We also make sure that projects submitted to us are in accordance with local, State and Federal planning and the zoning for its proposed location."

"Single homes or ordinary improvements are excluded, of course," Elmiger added. "as are other projects—sewer lines below a certain size, Federal projects and others. But, if there is doubt if a project should be submitted, the easiest thing to do is submit it and get a ruling at once."

As might be expected, the largest number of projects submitted to the Commission during the first year of formal review were from southern, more urbanized Counties, Westchester led all the others with 46 submissions, followed by Rockland with 35 and Dutchess with 24.

Breakdown
Albany County was fourth in total submissions with 20, followed by its cross-river neighbor, Rensselaer, with 17.

Ulster County had 17 projects within the Commission jurisdiction, Saratoga, Warren and New York Counties—Mantion, of course—six each in the Valley.

Bronx County in New York City had one, and three counties failed to have a single project within the jurisdiction in the 12 months: Essex, Hamilton and Kings, or Brooklyn.

"We expect the new project review year, which started Aug. 1, will be even busier and more demanding," concluded Elmiger. "Activity in the Hudson Valley is at a new high for this decade, despite financing problems, transportation problems, and material and labor shortages."

"And, hopefully, the Commission's project review function and sponsor's responsibility under law are being better understood. This is one instance in which, busy as we have been and are now, we welcome new business."

Howlett's closing remarks also welcomed something new: "I hope that this report on project review, give some flavor of what the Commission's general responsibilities are in relation to what we must do here in the Valley."

"I hope the false ideas that we are strictly a conservation group or strictly a regulatory agency disappear and that our true, far-ranging scope of interest and set of legislated responsibilities will replace them. We need public understanding and, with it, public support to achieve what every citizen of the Hudson Valley region wants for it."

Improvements to benefit patient well-being are always foremost in the plans of Northern Dutchess Hospital. The installation of a $8,000 image intensifier in the X-ray department is the latest addition purchased to provide the best treatment for NDH patients.

"This unit uses such light intensification that actual fluoroscopic examinations will be possible in daylight. Outlines and shapes which would have been less sharply defined in the old examinations are sharp and distinct with this equipment," Dr. Elias explained.

Northern Dutchess Hospital Adds New X-Ray Equipment

Improvements to benefit patient well-being are always foremost in the plans of Northern Dutchess Hospital. The installation of a $8,000 image intensifier in the X-ray department is the latest addition purchased to provide the best treatment for NDH patients.

According to Dr. Frederick Elias, director of radiology, this new machine will produce bright, informative images at greatly reduced radiation levels, granting more protection to the patient and examiner.

HRVC Anticipates More Projects, Ulster Had 17 of 202 During Year

The Hudson River Valley Commission's first year of formal project review activity, involving 202 submitted projects and 127 decisions on these, would be a busy one for any agency charged with examining all kinds of building activities in an area.

In the Commission's unusual jurisdiction, it was an even busier one and demonstrated the great amount of activity taking place along the Hudson River these days, said Bruce E. Howlett, associate director.

"You must remember that the Hudson is about 360 miles long," he said. "The Commission has jurisdiction on both sides, except that small portion in New Jersey. Negotiations are underway to bring that section within the Commission's responsibility, too, but for now it is limited to New York State."

"Within that 360 miles or so, any project that might have a significant effect on the Valley comes with the Commission's review responsibility if within one mile of the river's bank on either side—or within two miles if the site is visible from the river."

Frederick Elmiger, chief of project review, said many factors are involved in a Commission review of any proposal:

"When we review a project, different factors are studied and weighed in making a staff recommendation, which is then submitted to the nine Commissioners who make the final decision. More than 50 factors are involved, including such things as the proposal's effects on all kinds of resources, its possible affects in terms of the many kinds of pollution or physical hazard, its physical suitability to the involved site and area, even its side effects, which might be overlooked otherwise.

"By 'side effects' I mean whether the proposal might increase the need for road access, whether it needs rail or river access, its water supply and water treatment requirements not only for now but for a predictable future, whether it would increase need for any public services including education, all kinds of things."

Zoning Important

Economic results of the projects and human consequences, if any, also are considered, Elmiger said. "Often the long-range human side of a project is forgotten while attention is paid to preparing a plan for the site and the structures involved. It's part of our job to make sure that it's remembered as early as possible."

"We also make sure that projects submitted to us are in accordance with local, State and Federal planning and the zoning for its proposed location."

"Single homes or ordinary improvements are excluded, of course," Elmiger added, "as are other projects—sewer lines below a certain size, Federal projects and others. But, if there is doubt if a project should be submitted, the easiest thing to do is submit it and get a ruling at once."

As might be expected, the largest number of projects submitted to the Commission during the first year of formal review were from southern, more urbanized Counties. Westchester led all the others with 46 submissions, followed by Rockland with 35 and Dutchess with 24.

Breakdown

Albany County was fourth in total submissions with 20, followed by its cross-river neighbor, Rensselaer, with 17.

Ulster County had 17 projects within the Commission jurisdiction. Saratoga, Warren and New York Counties—Manhattan, of course—six each in the Valley.

Brax County in New York City had one, and three counties failed to have a single project within the jurisdiction in the 12 months: Essex, Hamilton and Kings, or Brooklyn.

"We expect the new project review year, which started Aug. 1, will be even busier and more demanding," concluded Elmiger. "Activity in the Hudson Valley is at a new high for this decade, despite financing problems, transportation problems, and material and labor shortages."

"And, hopefully, the Commission's project review function and sponsor's responsibility under law are being better understood. This is one instance in which, busy as we have been and are now, we welcome new business."

Howlett's closing remarks also welcomed something new: "I hope that this report on project review, give some flavor of what the Commission's general responsibilities are in relation to what we must do here in the Valley."

"I hope the false ideas that we are strictly a conservation group or strictly a regulatory agency disappear and that our true, far-ranging scope of interest and set of legislated responsibilities will replace them. We need public understanding and, with it, public support to achieve what every citizen of the Hudson Valley region wants for it."

Transplant Heart, Kidneys Of Woman Into 3 Patients

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Surgeons at the Cleveland clinic implanted in Robert Clappre, transplanted the heart and kidneys of a 25-year-old woman into three patients Wednesday. The recipients were in satisfactory condition.

The heart of Mrs. Barbara Lancaster Smith of Walnut Ridge, Ark., who died earlier Wednesday as a result of a Labor Day traffic accident, was placed into the chest of Dellett H. Lawson Sr., 50, of Akron, in Ohio's first heart transplant operation.

Mrs. Smith's kidneys were implanted in Robert Clappre, 29, of Minerva, Ohio, a supermarket clerk, and Airman 3.C Charles Munday, 29, of Berkley, Mich.

"I can now announce that the heart transplant has been successful and that the patient is in satisfactory condition," said Richard Dietz, a clinic spokesman. Dietz said "long standing clinic policy" and "medical ethics" prevented the release of additional information.

Air Dispute Delays Food

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A Red Cross had announced it would begin daytime flights from the Spanish island of Fernando Poo, off the Nigerian coast, where it has stockpiled some 3,500 tons of food.

Meanwhile, the Nigerians announced that in their big drive to close-out the 14-month-old civil war, they have captured Aba, largest of the three towns held by the Biafrans when the push started. They said federal troops were approaching one of the other towns, Owerri, 36 miles northwest of Aba.

In Umuahia, 30 miles north of Aba, a spokesman for Ojukwu's defense command declared that Aba is still under the "firm control of Biafran troops."

The federalists said neutralization of the Okigwe airstrip would block their troops' advance on Umuahia, the headquarters of the Biafran chief of state, Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu. The Nigerian government claimed that the Biafrans want to keep the strip at Uli clear for planes bringing arms by night.

August Lindt, the Red Cross coordinator for Nigeria, was in Biafra trying to clear the way for the airlift.

The Red Cross and several church groups have been flying emergency supplies to two Biafran airstrips at night despite Nigerian threats to shoot down any planes flying into Biafra. But the amount of food they have been able to deliver has not been nearly enough for the millions threatened with starvation. Even before the federal government's agreement, the

In Umuahia, 30 miles north of Aba, a spokesman for Ojukwu's defense command declared that Aba is still under the "firm control of Biafran troops."

A foreign newsman who visited the town Wednesday said Nigerian forces were shelling it and the few remaining civilians from a population that once numbered 131,000 were fleeing. The Biafrans said: "Care of civilians in that area is already in progress."

Another report in Umuahia said 40 persons were killed and many others wounded when Nigerian planes bombed the market place in Ihalia. Nigeria's Eastern Region had 29,000 square miles when Ojukwu proclaimed it the independent nation of Biafra on May 30, 1967. For six weeks last August and September it controlled 15,000 square miles of Nigeria's Midwest State also.

The rebels now have been squeezed into about 5,000 square miles. Among the 6 million people there, mostly from the Ibo tribe, thousands are reported dying daily of starvation.

VanDuser-Edwards Nuptials Announced

Miss Margaret Ann VanDuser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton VanDuser of RD 3, Wallkill, became the bride of John William Edwards of New Paltz, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Edwards of Esperance, on Sunday, Aug. 25, at St. Joseph's Church, New Paltz.

The Rt. Rev. Robert Moore of St. Charles Church in Gardiner, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Baskets of white gladioli decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a silk organza gown over silk taffeta, fashioned with a fitted bodice, empire style, and accented with Alencon lace. The gown featured a scooped neckline, elbow length sleeves, and a chapel length train. Her butterfly bouffant veil of French silk illusion was attached to a cluster of lace and petals of pearls and crystals. She carried a Colonial bouquet of carnations with light pink rose buds and white camellias.

Mrs. Michael Britsky of New Paltz was matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown of light pink dotted Swiss styled with a scooped neckline. Embroidered flower motifs of assorted colors outlined the empire waist and sleeves. Her headpiece was an open crown picture hat with the same embroidered flower motifs around the rim. She carried a Colonial bouquet of yellow and white carnations.

Attendants were the Misses Sharon Edmunds, Wallkill; Linda McCord, Wallkill; and Patricia Gatti, West Haverstraw. Their pastel colored gowns in blue, green and yellow, respectively, were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant.

William Worrell of Highland was best man. Ushers were James VanDuser, brother of the bride, Wallkill; Larry Koch, New Paltz; and John DeLuca of the Bronx.

After the ceremony a reception for 130 guests was given at the Rhoda Arms in Balmville. The bride, a graduate of Wallkill High school and the College of St. Rose, is a second grade teacher at Sophie Finn Elementary School, Kingston. Her husband, an alumnus of Bishop Gibbons High School in Schenectady, received his BA degree at State University College at New Paltz in 1966, and his Masters degree in June 1968. He is teaching at the John F. Kennedy School, Kingston.

When the couple return from their wedding trip to New Jersey and Long Island, they will reside at New Paltz.

Computer Hurries Impatient Patients

By AP Newsfeatures

The child is sick. That probably means he's grumpy, cranky, miserable, fidgety, bored and anxious. Right now he's in the waiting room of an outpatient clinic waiting to see a doctor. That probably means he's frightened too. The room is crowded and noisy, full of other grumpy, cranky, miserable, fidgety, bored, anxious and frightened children. For each child there is a parent, alternately scolding and soothing, cajoling and clouting. They wait. And wait. And wait.

Finally the child is called and gets to see a doctor. The doctor is a stranger to the child. What is worse, the child is a stranger to the doctor. The doctor glances over a medical history—if one is available—and does his examination quickly. There are 20 children just like this one yet to be seen.

This is a typical operation of an outpatient clinic of a major hospital today. The Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston has installed a computer system to schedule appointments for the 40,000 children who use its 54 outpatient clinics each year.

Now that sick child has a short wait in a much less crowded waiting room. And when he goes in, he sees a doctor he knows and who knows him.

The U.S. Public Health Service awarded Children's Hospital a $668,621 grant to study computer scheduling. The grant covers three years during which Children's will conduct several experiments to see if the computer system, a Honeywell Model 1200, can substantially improve patient care and the clinic's service to the community.

CRT (cathode ray tube) devices are located in various reception areas and administrative offices of the 11-story Fegan Building which houses the outpatient clinics.

The computer, with its great speed, keeps all the data a clerk

needs for scheduling up to date minute-to-minute. The CRT units make this information immediately available throughout the clinic building. Now, a clerk in the orthopedic clinic on the second floor does not need to waste time telephoning the surgical clinic on the third floor to see if an appointment can be made.

She merely presses a "command" button on the console of the CRT and asks for the next scheduled dates of the surgical clinic. The CRT, within seconds, displays the next 40 dates. The clerk selects the day convenient for the patient and the CRT displays all the unbooked time slots available in the surgical clinic that day. The clerk keys the patient's medical record number and the desired time slot and transmits this to the computer. And the appointment is made.

Now the child can get a precise appointment time, such as 9:30 a.m. Before, Children's would batch schedules. If a clinic had 30 appointments for the morning session, 15 children would be told to come at 8 a.m. and the rest at 10 a.m. They would be taken by the doctors on a first-come, first-served basis. In the months ahead, as additional programs are written for the computer, clinic clerks will be able to schedule appointments with specific doctors.

Now a patient may be handled by a different doctor at each visit. This not only extends the time needed for treatment, since the doctor must thoroughly familiarize himself with the patient's record, but the patient feels there is no personal contact.

"As much as possible in the future," Dr. Cronkite said, "the patient will see the same doctor every time he comes to the clinic. This places the responsibility of care upon one physician's shoulders. The patient feels he belongs to the doctor, not to the institution."

Meeting Scheduled

Computer Hurries Impatient Patients

By AP Newsfeatures

The child is sick. That probably means he's grumpy, cranky, miserable, fidgety, bored and anxious. Right now he's in the waiting room of an outpatient clinic waiting to see a doctor. That probably means he's frightened too. The room is crowded and noisy, full of other grumpy, cranky, miserable, fidgety, bored, anxious and frightened children. For each child there is a parent, alternately scolding and soothing, cajoling and clouting. They wait. And wait. And wait.

Finally the child is called and gets to see a doctor. The doctor is a stranger to the child. What is worse, the child is a stranger to the doctor. The doctor glances over a medical history—if one is available—and does his examination quickly. There are 20 children just like this one yet to be seen.

This is a typical operation of an outpatient clinic of a major hospital today.

The Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston has installed a computer system to schedule appointments for the 40,000 children who use its 54 outpatient clinics each year.

Now that sick child has a short wait in a much less crowded waiting room. And when he goes in, he sees a doctor he knows and who knows him.

The U.S. Public Health Service awarded Children's Hospital a $668,621 grant to study computer scheduling. The grant covers three years during which Children's will conduct several experiments to see if the computer system, a Honeywell Model 1200, can substantially improve patient care and the clinic's service to the community.

CRT (cathode ray tube) devices are located in various reception areas and administrative offices of the 11-story Feagan Building which houses the outpatient clinics.

The computer, with its great speed, keeps all the data a clerk

needs for scheduling up to date minute-to-minute. The CRT units make this information immediately available throughout the clinic building. Now, a clerk in the orthopedic clinic on the second floor does not need to waste time telephoning the surgical clinic on the third floor to see if an appointment can be made.

She merely presses a "command" button on the console of the CRT and asks for the next scheduled dates of the surgical clinic. The CRT, within seconds, displays the next 40 dates. The clerk selects the day convenient for the patient and the CRT displays all the unbooked time slots available in the surgical clinic that day. The clerk keys the patient's medical record number and the desired time slot and transmits this to the computer. And the appointment is made.

Now the child can get a precise appointment time, such as 9:30 a.m. Before, Children's would batch schedules. If a clinic had 30 appointments for the morning session, 15 children would be told to come at 8 a.m. and the rest at 10 a.m. They would be taken by the doctors on a first-come, first-served basis. In the months ahead, as additional programs are written for the computer, clinic clerks will be able to schedule appointments with specific doctors.

Now a patient may be handled by a different doctor at each visit. This not only extends the time needed for treatment, since the doctor must thoroughly familiarize himself with the patient's record, but the patient feels there is no personal contact.

"As much as possible in the future," Dr. Cronkrite said, "the patient will see the same doctor every time he comes to the clinic. This places the responsibility of care upon one physician's shoulders. The patient feels he belongs to this doctor, not to the institution."

Gonzales Defies Time in U.S. Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Plucky Pancho Gonzalez, the new "darling" of the tennis crowd at the age of 40, tore apart second seeded Tony Roche of Australia with methodical ease Wednesday to join two other Americans in the quarter final round of the $100,000 U.S. Open championship.

Responding to unusually loud cheers from the gallery of about 6,200 that rattled Roche, the 13th seeded Gonzalez forced his much younger opponent into numerous errors with his precision shots for an 8-6, 6-4, 6-2 triumph and a quarter final pairing against Dutchman Tom Okker.

Joining Gonzalez in the quarter finals, which includes three amateurs, were third seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia and the eighth seeded Okker. All but Okker are professionals and the Dutchman is eligible for the first prize of $14,000 as a "registered" player.

Rosewall, who now rates as the favorite following the defeats of top seeded Rod Laver and Roche, whipped Ron Holmberg of Highland Falls, N.Y., 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 8-6, and Okker, who has perhaps the best record of any amateur player this year, defeated Peter Curtis of England, 8-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2. The final match of the day between sixth seeded Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., and unseeded Nikki Pilić of Yugoslavia was halted in the fourth set because of darkness and will be resumed at 11 a.m. Thursday. The left-handed Pilić was leading 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, 8-8, when play was stopped. In men's quarter finals scheduled for Thursday, Rosewall will meet the winner of the Ralston-Pilić match, Arthur Ashe of West Point, N.Y., will play South African Cliff Drysdale, the conqueror of Laver, and Clark Graebner of New York, takes on John Newcombe of Australia.

The field for the women's singles semifinals was completed as top seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., turned back Maryna Godwin of South Africa 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, and fifth seeded Maria Bueno of Brazil, a four-time U.S. Amateur title in 1948 and 1949 and then was king of the pros during the next decade, showed remarkable comeback ability in turning back the 23-

year-old Roche, whom he was meeting for the first time in competition. Pancho, a resident of Malibu Beach, Calif., saved four set points in the opening set before breaking through in the 13th game for the win and he rallied for five games in a row after trailing 1-4 in the second set.

"It must be maddening to Tony to have a guy like me come back and beat him in a match like this," said the not too sympathetic Gonzalez. "But, he's still young. He'll get over it."

Roche, runnerup to Laver in the initial Wimbledon Open, admitted he was disturbed by the pronounced partisanship of the center court crowd at the West Side Tennis Club.

"I never ran into such a crowd," the Australian left hander said. "I don't mind their clapping, but yelling and screaming on a double fault of mine was going too far. Pancho was too good, though, and I didn't lose because of the crowd."

Rosewall, 33, and a professional for 11 years, appeared ready to wipe out Holmberg in straight sets before the sixth ranked American recovered to win the third set and move ahead 4-1 in the fourth, but with the score 4-2, Holmberg lost his serve after he had reached game point with two consecutive aces.

That proved the big point as Rosewall drew even at 4-4 and then made a decisive break in the 13th game when Holmberg double faulted.

"It was by far my toughest match of the tournament," said Rosewall while praising the good play of the unseeded American.

By GREG GALLO

Pitching is his profession but Dave McNally's hitting is paying the way toward a record-setting performance.

The stylish lefthander won his 11th consecutive game Wednesday, a club record, and smacked his third home run of the year to lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-3 victory over the New York Yankees.

McNally, who raised his record to 19-8, looms as a likely candidate to surpass the 20 victories posted by Steve Barber in 1963. No other Oriole pitcher has won more games during a single season. McNally has five more starts to break the mark.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston trounced Minnesota 10-2, Chicago beat Washington 3-0 in 14 innings, Detroit downed Oakland 4-2 and Cleveland beat California 9-5.

McNally, relying mostly on his fast ball, set down New York on 10 hits while striking out seven and not walking a batter.

Brooks Robinson tripled, his first of three hits, in the first inning and scored on loser Stan Bahnsen's wild pitch. The Yankees tied the score in the third when Tom Tresh singled home Dick Howser, who had tripled.

In the bottom of the inning, Dave Johnson doubled and scored on a single by Frank Robinson. After Robinson stole second Brooks Robinson doubled him home. Ellis Hendricks' run-scoring single gave Baltimore a 4-1 lead.

Bill Robinson and Andy Kosco hit solo homers in the fourth but McNally made it 5-3 with his homer. Mark Belanger bunted home Hendricks for the final run of the game.

The Red Sox exploded for six runs in the eighth inning as winning pitcher Gary Bell, 11, singled home a run. All the runs were unearned after Rich Rollins booted Jerry Adair's grounder. Carl Yastrzemski became the American League's leading hitter by rapping out four hits and raising his average to .291. He slammed his 18th homer of the season for Boston's final run. Tom McCraw squeezed home the winning run in the 14th inning and Luis Aparicio's fifth hit of the game drove in two more as Bob Locker won his fifth game in nine decisions after two scoreless innings of relief ball. A Tommy Davis single, a doubled by Ken Berry and a hit batsman loaded the bases for McCraw. McCraw then dropped down the winning hit off loser Dick Bosman, 2-9.

Willie Horton delivered a clutch single with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to lead the Tigers to victory and reduce their pennant-winning magic number to 14. With two out, Mickey Stanley walked and moved to third on a single by Jim Northrup. All Kaline walked to fill the bases and Horton followed with a scratch hit off the pitcher's glove. Bill Freehan walked to force in the final run. John Hiller, with relief help from Pat Dobson, raised his record to 7-5.

The Cleveland Indians banged out 16 hits including three each by Vern Fuller and Lee Maye and Joe Azcue knocked in four runs to enable Luis Tiant to win his 19th game of the season. Tiant led the game with two in the sixth when the Angels rallied for four runs. Roger Repoz accounted for two of the runs with his 13th homer of the year.

Arm Weary Cardinals Coast Toward Pennant

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals' rivals can't beat them in the National League pennant race, but could be setting them up for a stunning defeat in the World Series.

The Cardinals' magic pennant-clinching number is down to nine and it is only a matter of time before the champagne corks are popped. Manager Red Schoendienst has no worries on that score but it's a different matter when he looks at his once-elite starting pitching staff. It is down to one man — Bob Gibson.

Schoendienst's four other starters — Nelson Briles, Steve Carlton, Larry Jaster and Ray Washburn — have a combined 16-18 record since July 11 and have turned in only one complete game in 12 starts since Aug. 19. Gibson has a 9-1 record since July 11 and has pitched three of the staff's four complete games in 15 contests since Aug. 19.

All of which is sufficient to make the Detroit Tigers discount the Cardinals' 13 1-2 game lead and figure that they will be facing a staff loaded with tired arms in the World Series.

Briles was knocked out of the box for the fourth straight time and suffered his third loss in his last four decisions Wednesday night when the Cincinnati Reds drubbed the Cardinals 8-3. Briles was routed with none out in the third inning and was charged with six runs and seven hits while suffering his 10th loss against 17 victories.

The San Francisco Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-4 after a 7-6 loss and the Los Angeles Dodgers topped the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 in the only other National League games.

Pete Rose and Johnny Bench hit homers and Lee May had two doubles and a single to lead the Reds' 12-hit attack. Rose also had two singles, raising his league-leading batting average to .348. Jim Maloney went six innings to raise his record to 12-9 with the help of three innings of scoreless relief by Clay Carroll.

Bobby Bonds' single scored Jack Hatt with two out in the ninth inning as the Giants rallied for three runs in the eighth and one in the ninth for their victory over the Cubs.

Willie Mays' two-run double and Willie McCovey's sacrifice fly accounted for the three eighth-inning runs and helped set the stage for reliever Phil Regan's fifth loss. Ron Santo's run-scoring single and Ernie Banks' three-run homer had enabled the Cubs to take a 4-1 lead in the first inning.

Two-run homers by Don Kessinger and Billy Williams were the big blows for the Cubs in the first game. Joe Niekro went seven innings for his 14th win while Mike McCormick suffered his 14th loss.

Don Sutton pitched a three-hitter and struck out 12 batters to win his seventh game for the Dodgers and dealt Larry Jackson his 17th defeat. Ron Fairly, Tom Haller and Willie Crawford knocked in the Dodgers' runs with singles. Sutton was in trouble only in the fourth inning when he issued two of his four walks but got out of the jam by retiring Gary Sutherland on an infield out.

TIRED BUT TOUGH: Pancho Gonzalez slips to the ground during match with Tony Roche of Australia in the first U.S. Open Tennis Championships at Forest Hills Wednesday. # Gonzales Defies Time in U.S. Open FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Plucky Pancho Gonzalez, the new "darling" of the tennis crowd at the age of 40, tore apart second-seeded Tony Roche of Australia with methodical ease Wednesday to join two other Americans in the quarter final round of the $100,000 U.S. Open championship.

Responding to unusually loud cheers from the gallery of about 6,200 that rattled Roche, the 13th seeded Gonzalez forced his much younger opponent into numerous errors with his precision shots for an 8-6, 6-4, 6-2 triumph and a quarter final pairing against Dutchman Tom Okker.

Joining Gonzalez in the quarter finals, which includes three amateurs, were third-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia and the eighth seeded Okker. All but Okker are professionals and the Dutchman is eligible for the first prize of $14,000 as a "registered" player.

Rosewall, who now rates as the favorite following the defeats of top seeded Rod Laver and Roche, whipped Ron Holmberg of Highland Falls, N.Y., 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 8-6, and Okker, who has perhaps the best record of any amateur player this year, defeated Peter Curtis of England, 8-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2. The final match of the day between sixth seeded Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., and unseeded Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia was halted in the fourth set because of darkness and will be resumed at 11 a.m. Thursday. The left-handed Pilic was leading 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, 8-8, when play was stopped. In men's quarter finals scheduled for Thursday, Rosewall will meet the winner of the Ralston-Pilic match, Arthur Ashe of West Point, N.Y., will play South African Cliff Drysdale, the conqueror of Laver, and Clark Graebner of New York, takes on John Newcombe of Australia. The field for the women's singles semifinals was completed as top seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., turned back Maryna Godwin of South Africa 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, and fifth seeded Maria Bueno of Brazil, a four-time U.S. Amateur champ, beat Australia's Margaret Smith Court, the No. 4 seed, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3.

English girls Ann Haydon Jones and Virginia Wade met in a women's semifinal Thursday, while Mrs. King is scheduled to play Miss Bueno in the other semi Friday. Gonzalez, who seldom heard such cheers when he won the U.S. Amateur title in 1948 and 1949 and then was king of the pros during the next decade, showed remarkable comeback ability in turning back the 23-

year-old Roche, whom he was meeting for the first time in competition. Pancho, a resident of Malibu Beach, Calif., saved four set points in the opening set before breaking through in the 13th game for the win and he rallied for five games in a row after trailing 1-4 in the second set. "It must be maddening to Tony to have a guy like me come back and beat him in a match like this," said the not too sympathetic Gonzalez. "But, he's still young. He'll get over it."

Roche, runnerup to Laver in the initial Wimbledon Open, admitted he was disturbed by the pronounced partisanship of the center court crowd at the West Side Tennis Club.

"I never ran into such a crowd," the Australian left hander said. "I don't mind their clapping, but yelling and screaming on a double fault of mine was going too far. Pancho was too good, though, and I didn't lose because of the crowd."

Rosewall, 33, and a professional for 11 years, appeared ready to wipe out Holmberg in straight sets before the sixth ranked American recovered to win the third set and move ahead 4-1 in the fourth, but with the score 4-2, Holmberg lost his serve after he had reached game point with two consecutive aces.

That proved the big point as Rosewall drew even at 4-4 and then made a decisive break in the 13th game when Holmberg double faulted. "It was by far my toughest match of the tournament," said Rosewall while praising the good play of the unseeded American.

Pitching is his profession but Dave McNally's hitting is paving the way toward a record-setting performance.

MONTREAL (UPI) — Gene Mauch, fired earlier this season by the Philadelphia Phillies, was named today to manage the new Montreal entry of the National League.

Expect Better Football Team At Ellenville

ELLENVILLE—Coach Dave Franks starts his second year as head football coach at Ellenville High with a solid nucleus of 19 lettermen on which to build his 1968 varsity team.

The Blue Devils, an independent team with no league affiliation, compiled a 3-5 record in 1967 but Coach Franks expects hopefully to climb over the .500 mark this time around.

Howard Liebern is assisting Franks in whipping the Devils into shape for the season opener against Jeffersonville in Ellenville on Sept. 21.

First pre-conditioning practice session attracted a banner turnout of 53 candidates, which will eventually be reduced to 35.

Quarterback David Baglietto, who completed 50 per cent of his passes last year, heads the list of 19 returning lettermen.

Other returnees include half-backs Doug Maier and Steve Hayden and defensive stalwarts like Terry Houck, center Tino Lamastra; John Omoro and Al Kplick, tackles.

Best of the new prospects at the moment appear to be Al Mandiville and William Baglietto.

Safety Underfoot

FLAMINGO, Fla. (UPI) —

To contend with knee-deep marlugging at their feet and treacherous sawgrass with its razor-sharp teeth, early Everglades explorers wore copper wire for shoe laces and protective clothing. Modern-day travelers in Everglades National Park need not worry about these things, for they can view the wonder of the region from safe, elevated boardwalk trails and along the road that stretches to the Flamingo vacation facilities on Florida Bay.

Grill Beats Wright's In Ellenville League

GRILL BEATS WRIGHTS—In their two runs when Bill Heckman walked and Harold Edwards homered. These were the only two men to reach base for the Grill team.

Don Pepper pitched a four-hitter for the winners giving up just one run as Christian beat out a bunt and scored on a double by Joray.

In the sixth inning Wright's had the bases loaded and no outs but Pepper forced two men at the plate and struck out the third in a clutch pitching performance.

Tonight both teams will play the third game of the semi-finals to decide who will play Schrade-Walden in the finals which will start Monday night.

Rios and Bream Top City Stars

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The trouble with today's youth may be that they are the first humans to grow up having watched television all their lives.

Their rioting, drug taking, alienation and radical politics all may be unforeseen consequences of television's radical reshaping of the environment.

This was the message of the distinguished semanticist, S. I. Hayakawa, to the 76th annual convention of the American Psychological Association.

He compared TV to a powerful sorcerer who snatches a child away from his parents for three or four hours a day, something like 22,000 hours by the time they reach 18.

"Is it any wonder that these children, as they grew to adolescence, often turned out to be complete strangers to their dismayed parents?" the semanticist asked.

The important fact about television, Hayakawa continued, is "you have no interaction with it. A child sitting in front of a TV set gets no experience in influencing behavior and being influenced in return."

"Is there any connection between this fact and the sudden appearance in the past few years of an enormous number of young people from educated and middle class families who find it difficult or impossible to relate to anybody—and therefore drop out?

"I am sure you have met them, as I have—young people, not necessarily of the underprivileged classes, who are frightened of the ordeal of having to make conversation with their friends' parents or anyone else not of their immediate clique."

The anti-materialism of youth, Hayakawa said, may be an overdue negative reaction to "in a material world, everything, this luxurious carpeting, this new model car" will bring all kinds of happiness.

Looting by both whites and blacks in riots, he suggested, may be an explosive response to TV's materialistic world and its depiction of violence "as a way of life."

Convention Demonstrations Trigger LBJ Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The furor ignited by street demonstrations and police tactics at the Democratic convention has swirled into Congress and prompted an investigation by a presidential advisory panel.

The investigation, third started in two weeks, was announced Wednesday by Dr. Milton Eisenhower, chairman of a violence study task force named by President Johnson after the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley started probes earlier.

Eisenhower said his panel will also study July's gunbattle between police and black militants in Cleveland and, possibly, the rioting in a Miami Negro neighborhood during the Republican convention.

The Chicago demonstrations, police countermeasures, and news reporting sparked a congressional floor debate Wednesday that pitted Ohio's two Democratic senators against each other.

The state's junior senator, Sen. Stephen M. Young, said, "The security arrangements for the Democratic convention turned out to be a disaster and a disgrace."

"Democracy was clubbed to death by Mayor Daley's police," he added.

But most congressmen sided with Ohio's Sen. Frank J. Lausche, who said he's sick and tired of reading that violent demonstrations are the consequence of police brutality.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., described the demonstrators as a "bunch of troublemakers." "The mob included some of the most dedicated Communists and conspirators in America," he added.

Chicago Democratic Rep. Roman C. Pucinski accused newsmen of doing "an outrageous, unfair job" of covering the demonstrations.

"I don't understand what makes the media so squeamish" about showing provocative actions by the crowd, said Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio. "Let the American people know what kind of trash, bums they are."

Mayor Daley asked the three major television networks for time to give his version of what he called a "one-sided portrayal" of the convention.

Metromedia, which operates a string of television stations in Washington, New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Kansas City, wasn't included in the request but offered the mayor an hour to present his position.

NBC offered Daley a guest spot on a special hour-long "Meet the Press" interview show. But the mayor said he wouldn't appear before the panel of newsmen.

CBS turned down Daley's request, citing a half hour interview of the mayor during the convention.

ABC was considering the request.

Daley accused the networks of not providing "the background and planning for the purpose of disrupting the city and the national convention, the tactics used by the demonstrators, the biographies of the organizers and leaders, the role of the law enforcement agencies and the grave implications of these events."

Quin Tamm, executive director of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, released a statement in Washington saying, "For a profession that prides itself on objectivity, the initial coverage and reaction of the press were singularly one-sided."

Eisenhower said he hopes his 13-member panel called the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, can have its report on Chicago ready by the time President Johnson leaves office Jan. 20.

CSEA Strives to Maintain Agent Status

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The Civil Service Employees Association, struggling to retain its position as chief bargaining agent for most of the state's 150,000 employees, has urged Gov. Rockefeller to ask for the resignations of two top officials of the Public Employment Relations Board.

The board recently directed that most state employees be represented by six negotiating units, rather than the so-called general unit recommended last year by Gov. Rockefeller.

The CSEA called Wednesday for the dismissal of Paul Klein, the board's director of representation, and Jeremy Lefkowitz, its deputy chairman.

It was Klein, acting upon recommendations by Lefkowitz, who handed down the decision regarding the six representation units.

The CSEA, which represents about 124,000 state workers, has appealed the PERB decision, although it remains the bargaining agent for most employees in the general unit for the time being.

The CSEA also asked the governor to appoint a Moreland commission to investigate all activities of the PERB, which was created to oversee the new Taylor Law—the law that governs the relations between public employees and the government.

CSEA Strives to Maintain Agent Status

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Civil Service Employees Association, struggling to retain its position as chief bargaining agent for most of the state's 150,000 employees, has urged Gov. Rockefeller to ask for the resignations of two top officials of the Public Employment Relations Board.

The board recently directed that most state employees be represented by six negotiating units, rather than the so-called general unit recommended last year by Gov. Rockefeller.

The CSEA called Wednesday for the dismissal of Paul Klein, the board's director of representation, and Jeremy Lefkowitz, its deputy chairman.

It was Klein, acting upon recommendations by Lefkowitz, who handed down the decision regarding the six representation units.

The CSEA, which represents about 124,000 state workers, has appealed the PERB decision, although it remains the bargaining agent for most employees in the general unit for the time being.

The CSEA also asked the governor to appoint a Moreland commission to investigate all activities of the PERB, which was created to oversee the new Taylor Law—the law that governs the relations between public employees and the government.

DEAR ABBY: I have a birthmark on my neck which I can do nothing about. It used to be a strawberry red, but now it's gotten brownish, but it's just as noticeable.

I have used cosmetics to cover it, but powders and creams come off on my clothing, so I finally said, "To heck with that!"

I have been to all kinds of doctors and they all say, "It cannot be removed," and a skin graft would be too extensive, and it might leave scars which would even be worse.

I know you can't help me, Abby, but if you print this, perhaps it will stop a few people from staring at me in wonderment, or coming right out and asking me the incredibly rude question, "Is your neck dirty?"

BIRTHMARK CURSE
DEAR BIRTHMARK: A good rule to remember is, "If there is no remedy for it, learn to live with it." You can't stop rude people from staring. Neither can you prevent them from asking cruel and thoughtless questions, but you can avoid much embarrassment by coming right out yourself (when people stare) and saying, "No, my neck is not dirty...that's a birthmark."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old male who is getting married in September. My mother is going to have a baby in October. She is 44 years old, and is heartbroken about her condition because she's a widow. She couldn't believe it at first, but the doctor said she is definitely pregnant.

Abby, I love my mother and I intend to stick by her regardless. My problem is whether to tell my fiancée and her family about my mother. Is it really any of their business? All they know is that my mother is a middle-aged widow. I would appreciate your advice on this.

IN DOUBT
DEAR IN: Your mother's condition is nobody's business but hers. But a widow who plans to appear at her son's wedding in her 8th month, had better be prepared to answer a few questions. (And so should you.)

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is soon to be married to a very nice young man, and here is the problem: HIS mother is having a "JACK AND JILL" shower for my daughter and her son, and she is going around SELLING TICKETS to anyone who will buy one for $3.50! I am flabbergasted, to say the least.

How do we get out of this ridiculous situation? I know it is not proper for the parents of the bride or groom to host a shower, but this business of selling tickets is dreadful, and we want no part of it. Any suggestions?

Bridge

Shutout Bid Poses Problem

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Take a look at the East hand only. You are playing in a team game with International Match Point scoring which is the form of duplicate that comes closest to requiring rubber bridge strategy.

You would have opened with one heart but, unfortunately, South has started proceedings by bidding four spades and you must decide what to do.

You can pass; you can bid five hearts; you can double or you can bid four no-trump. The double would be for business but your partner might decide to take it out with a singleton spade and some high cards. In that case you would get to hearts. The four no-trump bid would ask him to bid a minor suit. If he selected diamonds you would be delighted, if he bid clubs you would go to hearts.

You should decide against the four no-trump call. Your hand just isn't strong enough for this bid. You also will probably decide against the pass. Of course, if you look at all the cards you will see that a pass is best. Your partner has as close to a blank hand as he can hold and you will be in trouble if you take any positive action.

At the table, the first East player decided to double. He wasn't at all confident of his ability to make five hearts and he hoped to set the four spade contract. Needless to say he didn't succeed in cashing anything except his two red aces. In fact, if he hadn't been careful he might have lost one of them.

The second East decided to bid five hearts. North doubled when it got back to him and East could only make seven tricks.

Five spades doubled at four amounted to 600 points; four four at five hearts doubled was 700. A 10-point difference is not scored in IMPs so the teams came out even.

Shutout Bid Poses Problem

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Take a look at the East hand only. You are playing in a team game with International Match Point scoring which is the form of duplicate that comes closest to requiring rubber bridge strategy.

You would have opened with one heart but, unfortunately, South has started proceedings by bidding four spades and you must decide what to do.

You can pass; you can bid five hearts; you can double or you can bid four no-trump. The double would be for business but your partner might decide to take it out with a singleton spade and some high cards. In that case you would get to hearts. The four no-trump bid would ask him to bid a minor suit. If he selected diamonds you would be delighted, if he bid clubs you would go to hearts.

You should decide against the four no-trump call. Your hand just isn't strong enough for this bid. You also will probably decide against the pass. Of course, if you look at all the cards you will see that a pass is best. Your partner has as close to a blank hand as you can hold and you will be in trouble is you take any positive action.

At the table, the first East player decided to double. He wasn't at all confident of his ability to make five hearts and he hoped to set the four spade contract. Needless to say he didn't succeed in cashing anything except his two red aces. In fact, if he hadn't been careful he might have lost one of them.

The second East decided to bid five hearts. North doubled when it got back to him and East could only make seven tricks.

Five spades doubled at four amounted to 690 points; down four at five hearts doubled was 700. A 10-point difference is not scored in IMPs so the teams came out even.

bete noir (bet NWAR) a person, object, or thing which is feared, disliked or unwanted. The study of algebra, the young man's bete noir, was a subject which created many problems during his school years. The obnoxious salesman, an individual who was considered a bete noir by everyone in the office, was telling an off color story to a new secretary. The angry draftee's unusual bete noir, refusing to salute Army officers, eventually led to a meeting with the base psychologist.

1968-69 Season Kicks Off

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Television's 1968-69 season gets rolling this weekend with the first of many specials that will lead to the outpouring of new nighttime series around the middle of the month.

On Saturday, NBC-TV will present the annual Miss America Pageant from Atlantic City, N.J., with Bert Parks and Bess Myerson again the cohosts. The same night, the network has an hour called "Johnny Carson Discovers Cypress Gardens," in which the comedian takes part in a broadcast of water sports.

Elizabeth Taylor Narrates Sunday night, ABC-TV has an hour documentary called "Around the World of Mike Todd," in which the late, fabulous showman is recalled by his actress-widow Elizabeth Taylor, and also by Art Buchwald, Jack E. Leonard, Gypsy Rose Lee, Ethel Merz, Lowell Thomas, Toots Shor and others.

Monday, ABC-TV presents "What Gapp?", a half-hour of comedy sketches in which Wally Cox tries to bring the generational difference. And, as a matter of curiosity—in a test film for a series that didn't get on—viewers can see Dustin Hoffman, of "The Graduate," as a district attorney in a CBS-TV hour titled "Higher and Higher, Attorneys at Law."

Thereafter, the specials continue to come thick, fast and sand: A Happening in Central Park, on Tuesday, CBS-TV has an hour documentary, "The Football Scholars," about the pro football's most successful wowing of high school athletes into college. Next Wednesday, TV, meanwhile, has two series CBS-TV presents "From Chekhov With Love," a 90-minute biographical drama of the Russian writer, starring Sir Finn, a 30-minute entry for John Gielgud, Dame Peggy children.

On Thursday, Sept. 12, NBC-TV airs a Rod Serling drama, "Certain Honorable Men," with Van Heflin as a congressman whose judgment is under fire by his young prodigy (Peter Fonda). And on Sept. 13, the same network offers the first hour of an occasional documentary series, "White Paper: Ordeal of the American City."

On Sept. 14, CBS-TV presents the 90-minute "Model of the Year Pageant." And on Sept. 15, the new season works up a full head of steam. CBS-TV unveils two highly-anticipated hour specials—"Barbara Streisand: A Happening in Central Park," a one-woman concert; an hour documentary, "The Football Scholars," about the pro football's most successful wowing of high school athletes into college. # Israel Acts On Rioting

JAFFA, Israel (UPI)—The Israeli government today ordered police, soldiers and civil defense workers to try to prevent more anti-Arab rioting in anger over terrorist bombings in Tel Aviv.

Three terrorist bombs planted in waste baskets exploded near Tel Aviv's central bus station Wednesday, killing one man and injuring 49 others.

Hundreds of Israelis, angered by the bombings, overturned automobiles and attacked any Arabs they could find in Jaffa, an ancient port city where Arab and Jew had lived in peace since the creation of Israel 20 years ago.

At least 11 injured

At least 10 Arabs and an Israeli policeman were injured. Police blocked all roads leading to Tel Aviv and surrounded the central market place in Jaffa to protect Arab residents.

The Tel Aviv explosions marked the first time since the June 5-10, 1967 Middle East war that terrorists had managed to bomb the city center.

Many Arabs barely escaped the screaming mobs in Jaffa. Police stopped many Arab motorists and took them into protective custody.

In Tel Aviv, police questioned 50 Arabs as suspects in the bombings.

In Cairo, the newspaper Al Gomhouriya said Egyptian Foreign Minister Maymoud Riad told the Arab foreign minister's conference that the peace mission of Gunnar V. Jarring to the United Nations has failed.

All indications point to the mission's failure, columnist Mohamed Anis quoted Riad as saying.

U.N. Deliberations

Jarring, Swedish ambassador to the Soviet Union, has been traveling between his Cyprus headquarters and Middle Eastern capitals for the past 10 months as a U.N. representative seeking a peaceful solution in the Middle East.

In the United Nations, Security Council members deliberated privately on what to do about an Israeli complaint that Egyptian troops ambushed an Israeli patrol along the Suez Canal last week.

The council adjourned Wednesday after hearing Egypt deny Israeli charges that a 30-man Egyptian force crossed to the east bank of the canal Aug. 26, killed two Israeli soldiers and kidnapped a third.

Conservatives Renew Appeal For Joint Pro-Nixon Slate

NEW YORK (AP)—This state's Conservative party has renewed its appeal to New York's Republicans to share a joint slate of presidential electors pledged to Richard M. Nixon.

If the Republicans refuse to do so, the Conservatives threaten to run their own pro-Nixon slate which they say could draw votes away from the Republicans.

This might cause Nixon to lose New York State and the election, according to William F. Buckley Jr., a Conservative leader who ran for Mayor of New York in 1965.

Buckley said Wednesday he believed that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller will oppose the joint Conservative-Republican slate. The GOP State Committee meets today to choose 43 Nixon electors.

Buckley attributed Rockefeller's alleged opposition to a lack of enthusiasm for Nixon. "The fact that it principally hurts Mr. Nixon seems to be something he can put up with," Buckley said. But Conservative vice chairman Kiernan O'Doherty was more optimistic that the GOP would accept joint elector slates before they must be filed with the state. Although the filing deadline is Monday, O'Doherty said that substitutions can be made until Sept. 13.

Meanwhile, Conservative Chairman J. Daniel Mahoney thought his party's committee would go ahead with picking its own pro-Nixon slate when it meets Saturday. Although he said he could not speak for the entire committee, he said "that's my reading of the sentiment of the party."

But New York Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo has said he will reject any pro-Nixon conservative list unless it has Nixon's permission. Votes for a separate conservative Nixon slate could not be added to Nixon's GOP total.

But a joint presidential elector list would include Republicans on the same ticket with

U.S. Toll in Viet 200,000

SAIGON (UPI)—The Vietnam War has cost America more than 200,000 men killed, wounded or lost in action, U.S. headquarters said today.

The disclosure came in the weekly casualty totals which showed 408 U.S. servicemen killed and 2,513 wounded last week, the highest toll since the Communists' May-June summer offensive.

It brought the number of American casualties since Jan. 1, 1961, to 27,509 killed, 171,809 wounded and 1,197 missing—a total of 200,515, the announcement said.

Communist losses last week were 4,476 killed, bringing their total for the war to 390,105. South Vietnamese headquarters said 284 government soldiers were killed and 1,187 wounded, but no totals for the entire war are available.

Exceed Korean Casualties
U.S. battlefield losses have already exceeded those in Korea as well as those suffered by the French in the French-Indochina War. Vietnam is the third costliest war the United States has fought against foreign troops, behind World Wars I and II.

Last week's casualty figures represented the losses in a series of battles along the Cambodian border, in the northern war zone and Communist shellings of key allied bases including Da Nang.

The American losses were the highest since the week ending June 1 when 438 GIs were killed and 3,870 wounded.

In action today Communist forces bombarded eight South Vietnamese outposts guarding Saigon's western flank against infiltration and tried unsuccessfully to overrun one of them, military reports said.

Typhoon Bess' 75-mile-an-hour winds forced cancellation of U.S. Navy air raids into North Vietnam.

Communists Hit Outposts
Seven government soldiers were wounded in the series of Communist attacks in Hau Nghia Province, lying between the capital and Cambodia. Five of them were hit while beating off the ground assault, the war communique said.

The shellings erupted before dawn as the Communists apparently tried to keep the outposts busy while infiltrators moved through the night along a favorite 70-mile corridor bombed repeatedly in recent weeks by American B52 bombers.

Conservatives Renew Appeal For Joint Pro-Nixon Slate

NEW YORK (AP)—This state's Conservative party renewed its appeal to New York's Republicans to share a joint slate of presidential electors pledged to Richard M. Nixon.

If the Republicans refuse to do so, the Conservatives threaten to run their own pro-Nixon slate which they say could draw votes away from the Republicans.

This might cause Nixon to lose New York State and the election, according to William F. Buckley Jr., a Conservative leader who ran for Mayor of New York in 1965.

Buckley said Wednesday he believed that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller will oppose the joint Conservative-Republican slate. The GOP State Committee meets today to choose 43 Nixon electors.

Buckley attributed Rockefeller's alleged opposition to a lack of enthusiasm for Nixon. "The fact that it principally hurts Mr. Nixon seems to be something he can put up with," Buckley said.

But Conservative vice chairman Kiernan O'Doherty was more optimistic that the GOP would accept joint elector slates before they must be filed with the state. Although the filing deadline is Monday, O'Doherty said that substitutions can be made until Sept. 13.

Meanwhile, Conservative Chairman J. Daniel Mahoney thought his party's committee would go ahead with picking its own pro-Nixon slate when it meets Saturday. Although he said he could not speak for the entire committee, he said "that's my reading of the sentiment of the party."

But New York Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo has said he will reject any pro-Nixon conservative list unless it has Nixon's permission. Votes for a separate conservative Nixon slate could not be added to Nixon's GOP total.

But a joint presidential elector list would include Republicans on the same ticket with

U.S. Toll in Viet 200,000

SAIGON (UPI)—The Vietnam War has cost America more than 200,000 men killed, wounded or lost in action, U.S. headquarters said today.

The disclosure came in the highest since the week ending June 1 when 438 GIs were killed and 3,870 wounded.

In action today Communist forces bombarded eight South Vietnamese outposts guarding Saigon's western flank against infiltration and tried unsuccessfully to overrun one of them, military reports said.

Typhoon Bess' 75-mile-an-hour winds forced cancellation of U.S. Navy air raids into North Vietnam.

The shellings erupted before dawn as the Communists apparently tried to keep the outposts busy while infiltrators moved through the night along a favorite 70-mile corridor
